NEWPORT, R. I.

THE NEWPORT MERCURY was established in June, 1758, and is now in its one hundred and thirtieth year. It is the oldest newspaper in the Union, and, with less than half a dozen exceptions, the oldest printed in the English language. It is a large quarto weekly of fifty-six columns filled with interesting reading—editorial, State, local and general news, well-selected miscellany and valuable farmers' and household departments.—Reaching so many households in this and other States, the limited space given to advertising is very valuable to business men.

TERMS: $2.00 a year in advance. Single copies in wrappers, 5 cents. Extra copies can always be obtained at the office of publication and at the various news rooms in the city.

☞Specimen copies sent free, and special terms given advertisers by addressing the publisher.

Local Matters.

Natural History Society.

Mr. James M. Southwick of Providence, lectured on Thursday evening, 21st instant, before this Society on "The Birds of Rhode Island." Mr. Southwick's scientific knowledge, and the opportunities afforded him by his profession as a naturalist, combine to fit him well for such a subject, which he treated in a pleasant, popular style. He gave many interesting details as to the extent and variety of our feathered residents in this State, who come and go without any appeal to naturalization or any other human laws, but guided simply by the unerring laws of nature. It seems there are 768 different species of birds in the United States, and of these 231 at least, visit Rhode Island, fully 100 being permanent residents. The meeting was presided over by Colonel J. Hare Powel, whose own acquaintance as a sportsman with the birds of Newport, enabled him to supplement Mr. Southwick's remarks with several notes about various species. Other local ornithologists spoke, including Mr. Parmenter, Mr. Charles H. Lawton, Mr. A. O'D. Taylor and Dr. Rives. Dr. Storer and Rev. Mr. Emerson also made remarks on the nesting habits and other traits of birds. This branch of natural history seems a favorite in Newport; and Mr. Southwick's chapter of notes and practical suggestions as to collections, will, no doubt, deepen the interest in ornithological investigation.

Reunion of the First Regiment.

Co. F. First R. I. Regiment detached Militia went to Pawtucket Thursday to take part in the fifteenth reunion of the regiment. The regiment enjoyed the hospitality of Company E. of that city and a very good time was had. A short street parade was made in Pawtucket and the regiment was divided into four companies, the fourth being commanded by Col. A. P. Sherman, of Newport. A grand banquet was given and thoroughly enjoyed. At the election of officers Gen. Charles R. Dennis, of Providence, was chosen President, James H. Chappelle of Newport was chosen one of the Vice Presidents, Col. A. P. Sherman was chosen a member of the Executive Committee. At the banquet speeches were made by many distinguished guests and members. The next meeting of the association is to be held in Woonsocket.

Aquidneck Agricultural Society Fair.

The committee, having the matter in charge of holding the annual Fair of the above society, met on Wednesday evening with a full attendance. The committee organized by the choice of William O. Green Chairman and John J. Peckham Secretary and Treasurer.

It was voted to hold the annual Fair of the Society in the month of September, dates to be arranged hereafter. By the holding of the fair it secures the eight hundred dollars voted by the State for the payment of premiums.

It is hoped that the people of Newport County will give the fair a liberal support, so that the society may live and flourish and not fade out of existence.

Narragansett Pier.

The Season at Narragansett Pier has opened very auspiciously. There is a larger number of people there now than ever before at this season of the year. The hotels all seem to be filling up rapidly and the company is evidently bent on enjoyment. One of the pleasantest hotels of the many at this popular resort is the Atwood House, kept by Mr. J. A. Tucker. This hotel is situated about half way between the boat landing and the Casino, and from its extensive piazzas a beautiful view of the broad Atlantic can be obtained. Everything at the house is homelike and pleasant and we would advise all Newportors visiting the Pier to give the proprietor a call.

The members of the Merchants Club had a jolly time of it Wednesday at Beaver Tail.

RECORD OF DEATHS.

William H. Greene.

Mr. Wm. H. Greene died at his residence, 54 John street, yesterday morning in the 76th year of his age, from old-fashioned consumption. Mr. Greene had been in poor health for a great many years—in fact he had never been strong, his disease having showed itself in his youth—but by systematic care he succeeded in battling with his enemy until old age. Mr. Greene was a cutter by trade and previous to 1861 carried on the tailoring business at the store on Thames street now occupied by J. M. K. Southwick. From that time until about two years ago, he was employed in the establishment of Wm. C. Langley & Son. He was for many years orderly sergeant in the Newport Artillery Company and retained a deep interest in that organization to his death. He was also one of the charter members of Rhode Island Lodge of Odd Fellows.

Edward T. Allan.

Mr. E. T. Allan, who died on Wednesday at the advanced age of 70 years, was for many years a prominent business man in Newport and, until overtaken by reverses, was possessed of considerable property. He was a highly esteemed citizen and possessed the confidence of all who knew him.

THE ATLANTA'S GUNS.

Interesting Statement Regarding Their Trial—The Previous Reports Exaggerated.

The damage to the Atlanta's battery has been very much exaggerated. The guns were first fired with reduced charges, 30 lbs of powder for the 6 inch, and 90 lbs for the 8 inch, the service charges being 50 and 125 lbs. respectively for the 100 lb. and the 250 lb. projectile. No bad effects resulted from this trial. With the full service charges of 50 lbs. and 125 lbs. for each gun certain minor defects were discovered, notably with the 8-inch rifle, which in its recoil, broke the bronze circles that are intended, through the agency of clip hooks, to check the inward action of the piece after firing. The guns functioned perfectly, the range of fire, the powder pressure, and the mechanical appliances being all that was expected. It is a matter merely of constructive detail as to the recoil apparatus and when this is strengthened so as to receive the shock of discharge, the guns are sure to give no further trouble. The sensational reports as to the destruction of the decks and the want of confidence the officers of the ship have in the battery, are absolutely without foundation. The total damage done is not so great as the ordinary ship experiences in an average gale, and so far as can be discovered this is limited by the cracking of the electric light globes, about thirty in all, and by the disruption of the 8 inch gun circles. No difficulty was found in working the forward 8 inch gun by hand power, and the training of both guns, proved conclusively that the engines designed for the purpose by Lieut. Fisk, fully equalled the confident anticipation of the Ordnance Bureau.

The Yachting Season.

There is again some talk and on the part of energetic Mr. F. P. Garrettson, some good work, going on in the matter of Citizens Cups races similar to those of last year. Mr. Garrettson last year took the initiative and this year has done so again and it is to be hoped that the efforts being made will be eminently successful. The committee which had charge of matters last year consisted of Gov. Wetmore, Mayor Powel, Mr. J N. A. Griswold, Major Theodore K. Gibbs, Mr. Anthony S. Sherman and Col. F. G. Harris, who was the Secretary, and it is but a few days ago that, owing to the big strike among the silversmakers in New York, they were enabled to send the prizes to their destination. But they went, finally, and very handsome ones they were. There is no reason why the good people of Newport should not give a fund each year for just such a purpose. It is not desirable to look at this matter in a selfish manner, but even if one were to, it is very clear that it would be advantageous to do so. But Newport people as a rule give for the sake of giving and not for what they can make out of their gifts. They love to see these beautiful yachts enter the harbor; they delight to see the sails flutter in the breeze and hear the booming of the cannon. Let there by all means be an annual yacht race. It is a splendid sport and one which can be thoroughly enjoyed. The intentions for this year's affair will doubtless be crystalized in a few days, and what can be done to make it a grand success should be done by one and all.

The Thistle Coming for the Cup.

The yacht Thistle will sail for New York on Monday next. She takes a crew of forty men. Her owner and her captain are sanguine that she will win the America's cup.

The excursion parties appear to be larger and more numerous than for many summers past.

Sad Drowning Accident.

The first drowning accident of the season has to be chronicled and the circumstances are very distressful.—Wednesday afternoon Miss Julia McPhee, the eleven year old daughter of Mr. John McPhee,, of the United States ship New Hampshire band, and her young brother went down to the Cliffs and it was proposed between them to go and wade in the water. For their sport they selected a dangerous little beach just under the Livingstone cottages. Thither they went and began wading in the water. The waves rushing in, and around the rocks make dangerous breakers and it was one of these that caught the young girl and carried her to her death. It would appear from the story of the six-year-old brother who was saved that the girl after wading and in trying to make her way on the rocks fell into the water and a heavy breaker took her out. The boy held tightly on to one of the drain pipes and was discovered in a somewhat exhausted condition by a lady and gentleman who were passing. They rescued him and took him up to the residence of Mr. John Whipple, where the child was very kindly cared for. Mr. John Whipple, Jr., hearing of the affair, rushed down to the Cliffs, and after a search, succeeded in discovering the body of the girl and bringing her ashore. Then Dr. McKim was sent for and he with others labored faithfully until after twelve o'clock Thursday morning trying to resuscitate the poor child, but it was a fruitless effort.

Liquor Forfeitures.

The Newport authorities seem determined to enforce the new liquor law, whatever the rest of the state may do. On Saturday afternoon the business places of Patrick H. Horgan, on West Broadway; Patrick Nolan, William street; Mrs. Nicholson, Golden Hill street, and Charles A. Trager, Bath road, were raided and large quantities of wines, liquors and beer secured. Warrants for keeping for sale and for maintaining a nuisance were served on each of the above—with the exception of Trager who could not be found—on Thursday and the several defendants were released on bail of $1200 each. The cases which were to come before the District Court yesterday were continued to Tuesday next.

The New Directory.

Our new Directory for 1887 has arrived from the publishing house of Messrs. Sampson, Murdock & Co., of Boston, who have performed a similar service to the satisfaction of our citizens for several years. It is the usual size and style of make-up and contains 8695 names, of which 556 are summer residents, as against 8110 in 1886. 973 of the names are new, and 301 are of persons who have died during the year. The total number of changes in compilation, from last year's book, reach nearly 4000.

The Health of Newport.

The Board of Health report five deaths in this city the past week. Two of these deaths were by accidents; so that there have been but three deaths from disease during the week which shows that the death rate in Newport is very low. While people are dying in the inland cities by hundreds on account of the heat it is gratifying to be able to record that not a single case of sun stroke has been recorded in this city this summer.

The interest on the debt of the Shiloh Baptist church falls due next week and the pastor, Rev. H. N. Jeter, is making a special effort not only to meet it, but to reduce the principal five hundred dollars. The amount required to do this, over and above what is already on hand, is $236, and it is expected that $100 of this will be raised in church tomorrow. For the balance Mr. Jeter will seek outside aid. If the undertaking be successful the debt will be reduced to $600 which amount can be taken care of by the church independently.

The evening service at the First Baptist church to-morrow will include a young people's prayer meeting at 7 o'clock, followed by a sermon by the pastor at 7.30 o'clock. Subject—"John Chrysostom, or the Golden Mouthed Preacher."

Deputy Consul Horatio G. Wood, transferred from Cairo, Egypt, to the State Department at Washington, sailed from Queenstown Thursday on the Adriatic, and will probably reach New York the latter part of next week.

Mr. and Mrs. William L. Weaver will have the sympathy of a large circle of friends in the death of their daughter Ruth F. She was a bright, lovable girl and her sudden death is a great blow to her parents.

Hon. R. R. Hamilton, of New York, is expected at Newport in a few days with his yacht. While here he will be the guest of his brother, Schuyler Hamilton, Jr., on Harrison avenue.

Rev. J. L. Dart, of Charleston, S. C., will preach at the Shiloh Baptist church to-morrow.

Resignation of Secretary Chapin.

It is a source of great regret to learn that the health of Mr. William W. Chapin, Secretary of the Board of State Charities and Corrections, is such as to compel him to resign the position which he has filled so long and so worthily. It is scarcely necessary to add that the members of the Board are deeply pained at losing so valuable an official, especially under the circumstances. Tuesday the Board met and with great reluctance accepted the resignation. Their selection of a successor will be endorsed by everyone who has the interests of the State at heart. The gentleman who hereafter will fill the position is ex-State Auditor Samuel H. Cross, of Westerly. He will make a first class official in every way.

The American Fox Terrier Club.

The very interesting and successful exhibition of dogs held here last year under the auspices of the American Fox Terrier Club will be recalled with pleasure by the large number of people who visited it. A second exhibition will be held here on the 7th and 8th of August when a popular price, twenty-five cents only, will be charged for admission. This is a good move on the part of the Club, of which Mr. August Belmont, Jr., is president. A large number of prize dogs will be exhibited and we hope the affair will be an unqualified success.

Travis Van Buren, a grandson of President Van Buren, has arrived in New York from Europe, and is now fishing the preserves at Tuxedo. Van Buren was one of the fortunate few who backed Pierre Lorillard's Iroquois to win the Derby, and, taking the long odds of 40 to 1, he landed $40,000 on the event. Van Buren is of medium height, powerfully built, with a skin well tanned by the sun and closely cropped gray hair. He excels in all athletic sports, is a first rate boxer, a dashing and spirited polo player, as the records at Hurlingham, Monte Carlo and the Circle des Patineurs will abundantly testify.

At the Union Congregational Church, Sunday was observed as Children's Day. The church was decorated with flowers, conspicuous among which was a floral clock. The pastor, Rev. M. Van Horne, was present. Rev. Mr. Davis, from Ireland, Mr. George A. Littlefield, and Mr. E. J. Herrick were the speakers in the evening, all teaching plain, but true and useful lessons to the children. The choir charmed the listeners with a good selection of sacred songs. Rev. J. M. Cargill pronounced the benediction.

The vestry of the Central Baptist Church has been entirely renovated, and under the supervision of the ladies made to look much more comfortable and inviting. The hall has been newly carpeted, and in place of the benches three hundred oak chairs, with close-cane seating, have been placed there. A new platform table and three new arm chairs are additional features of the change. The vestry presents a very handsome appearance.

Cavalry Commandery of Knight Templars, of Providence, will make a three days' pilgrimage to Portsmouth, Nashua and Manchester, N. H., on the 7th, 8th and 9th of September. It is expected that the Newport Band will be employed to furnish the music for the Providence Templars during their pilgrimage.

The fact that a large number of our best known and wealthiest summer people now patronize the beach should be regarded as a safe guide in future for the authorities. The more they improve the old town the more will particular localities be visited.

Commander and Mrs. C. F Goodrich held a very delightful reception at the Torpedo Station Tuesday afternoon.—The New Hampshire band was present and played some delightful music. A large number of people were present.

Mr. Henry Barbey, of New York, has taken Pinard cottage No. 2 for the remainder of the season, and will arrive in a few days with his family.

Mr. G. M. Hutton and family, of Baltimore, have arrived at the Winans cottage. Their family numbers some fifteen persons in all.

The River Queen makes her trip to Block Island today as usual. She leaves Long Wharf at 10:45 and returning leaves Block Island at 3 P. M.

Quite a number of runaways have taken place on Bellevue avenue this season. A mounted policeman would be useful under such circumstances.

An Italian Marriage of Local Interest.

The following notice of a marriage ceremony, taken from the Piedmontese, an Italian newspaper, and translated expressly for the MERCURY, will be found interesting to our local readers from the fact that the principal of the high contracting parties is a son of Mr. William S. Wilcox of this city. The distinguished young Hawaiian-Newporter has been too often referred to in these columns to require any special introduction further than appears in the following:

TURIN, 15 June.—This morning, June 15, took place the very auspicious nuptials of the noble Signorina Luisa Sobrero, (daughter of the late Baron Lorenzo Sobrero,—Colonel of Artillery in retirement, and donna Victoria, of the Princely family Colonna) to Mr. Robert W. Wilcox, of the Sandwich Islands; first Pupil of our Military Academy, and now of the School of Application for Artillery and Engineering.

The bridegroom is related to the reigning family of Sandwich Islands, and King Kalakaua, in sign of his pleasure sent his Adjutant, Col. J. H. Boyd, to represent him at the nuptial ceremony;—bringing splendid gifts to the bride from the King.

Colonel Samuel Nowlein and daughter (relatives of the bridegroom) also assisted at the ceremonies;—the daughter remains in Italy to study painting. The ceremony was triple;—first, by the Archbishop, who saluted the company with the greatest bounty; then at the municipality where the civil marriage occurred; and lastly at the Protestant Chapel. We must express our congratulations and sympathy for this couple with manners so affable and aspect so intelligent. The Hawaiians were delighted that their co-nationalist—Wilcox, had known how to glean one of the fairest flowers of Italy, to transplant it in their land of Eternal Spring. We scatter flowers in the path of the happy couple.

A ferocious dog at the residence of Mr. J. W. Ellis, on Bellevue avenue, jumped upon a news carrier named William Kane, in the employ of Mr. W. P. Clarke, and bit him so severely that the little fellow had to be placed under Dr. Rankin's care. These little fellows, who as a rule are faithful to their duties, have to run the gauntlet with surly dogs very frequently and there have been cases where they pass their customers' residences rather than risk being bitten. We are sure that the attention of people having dogs need only to be drawn to the matter in order that the animals may be tied up or housed.

There was a large attendance at the Women's Auxilliary Convention held in the Channing parlors Tuesday.—Mrs. Buckhout presided. Mrs. Julia Ward Howe delivered a delightful address, dwelling chiefly upon reminiscences of Dean Stanley. She related interesting accounts of her meeting the distinguished divine, described some of his characteristics, and bore testimony to his high character as a christian and gentleman. Mrs. Howe's address was listened to with rapt attention and she was cordially thanked for it.

The usual quarterly session of the Grand Division, Sons of Temperance, was held Tuesday in the hall of Atlantic Division of this city. There was a fair attendance. Grand Worthy Patriarch Bemdel, of Providence, presided. The reports read showed the Order to be in a satisfactory condition.

The extra seats for the sea-wall walk at the beach should be put in forthwith otherwise if the asphalt blocks are first laid they will have to be taken up again for the purpose indicated. Besides it would be a great accommodation to the public to have the seats there.

Poetry.

The Magic Words.

The scene of conflict was a level plain
That lay among the stretching hills of Spain,
And on the sand that glistened in the sun
Ten thousand lay, whose hours of life had run.

'Till noonday's heat, from earliest sign of dawn,
The battling forces were in combat drawn,
And ere the sun sank silent in the west
A host of men had found eternal rest.

Behind the battle-field, beneath a tent,
A soldier lay, on death his vision bent.
A kindly priest that spoke of God was near.
A doctor, he was there, but full of fear.

Each was a Jew, had each a Hebrew's zeal,
But neither dared his name or race reveal,
But death had robbed them of their mortal fears;
Here in his shadow they would spend their tears.

"Shemma Yisreal," the dying soldier breathed,
His face, in death, with fainting smiles all wreathed.
"Adonai Elohenu," said the man of God;
The doctor murmured, "Adonai Echad."

The priest reached out and grasped the doctor's hand,
These magic words had forged a mighty band;
And then upon the doctor's bosom laid his head
And wept. The soldier now, alas! was dead.

Sunrise on Block Island.

BY D. BERTRUNE DUFFIELD.

Behold! his royal majesty
Leaps blazing from the sea.
While ocean's murmuring welcome rings
Around the rocky lea.

The cloudy curtains, near the wave,
Take golden glory on,
And such as float still higher up,
Rich purple vesture don.

A lonely reefer's rattling rope
Now lifts his spreading sail,
And now out o'er the silent sea,
He sings his glad "All hail!"

* * * * * * *

So, some sweet morn, when waves are calm,
Like yonder sailor free,
May I my prow, thro' glory bright
Of God's wide spreading love and light,
Point towards Eternity;—
And hopeful chant the hymn that solves
It's cloud-wrapt mystery!

JULY 14, 1887.

Selected Tale.

SAMANTHY ON A "TOWER."

Josiah Allen's Wife Visits Washington.

Josiah and me done first rate last year, and so when he axed me to go off with him on some towers, two or three on 'em, I consented with alackrity. Towers are so elevatin' and upliftin.'

He proposed that we should go on our first tower to Washington. Says he: "We are all run behind in payin' visits; less go first and see Miss Bean."

Miss Bean is his favorite third cousin on his own side. He thinks a sight on her. But good land! so do I. I hain't a mite jealous; I like Miss Bean. And we owed her lots of visits; she had made her home with us before she married Bean.

So we set sail early one mornin' and arrived at Miss Beanses, Washington, D. C., just as the sunset was a lowerin' down her purple mantilly and hangin' it in graceful folds over the settin' sun.

The sun had gone out of sight, and the mantilly I speak on all lay in dusky crumpled folds right down on the horizeon, but I have to flower off facts a little.

Miss Bean wuz glad to see us, and she and Josiah seemed almost overglad to meet again. But I see at first sight (and mentioned it to Josiah afterward) that poor woman had falled dretfully, and pitied the poor thing, and says I: "I am afraid that Bean hain't what he should be."

And Josiah seid: "He never had thought much of Bean," which may be true so far as I know.

Bean was off a travelin' on the road for groceries.

Well, the next mornin' knowin' that this tower was a short one, we didn't lay out to stay more'n two or three days, and knowin' from our elevated positions a great deal would be expected of us by Janesville and the world in the line of knowledge, I seys to Josiah early the next mornin'—

"Josiah Allen, it stands us in hand to be up and a doin'," and seys I, as midellin' solemn events: "What shall we tackle first, Josiah?"

And he says, "The Capitol."

And consequently we tackled it.

Immegetly after breakfast, a good one (though the steak wuzn't so tender as I have seen, and the bread wuzn't like the bread in a certain stone eburn, in a certain buttery, and so I mentioned to Josiah), still it was a midellin' good breakfast, and we set out in pretty good sperets, and the street car.—We thought we would ride round the city a little afor we tackled the Capitol. Miss Bean had to stay to home to tend to things, and though Josiah seemed to be desperated about her not goin' with us, I felt inclined to look on it as a dispersation, and to be resigned so to.

I was dressed well and felt well. I had on a bran new parmethy dress, and a mantilly of the same, with tabs, a long new green veil, a umberel, as good as new, and I also had a new pair of wosted gloves, the same color as my dress. I corresponded all through, and felt well, but not haughty.

And so we wended our way along the broad, clean, beautiful streets; why they wuz so clean that you could almost eat your breakfast offer'em, and broad, why broad is no name for 'em.

And I seys to Josiah: "What do you spose makes the streets so broad and clean?"

And he says: "What henders the streets from being broad when the government owns the hull country. It would be a pity if it couldn't make the streets broad enough to spread itself out in." Says he, "the law of American freedom is a wide one; it takes sights of room to roll around in, and it impresses foreign natives dretfully to see the wedth of the tracks. And as for their bein' so clean," seys he, "there is lots of able bodied men here who don't have a thing to do only to make a law now and then. I spose mebby they lay hold and help sometimes."

"I don't believe it," seys I. "They'd think it were demeanin' 'em. Not that it would be," seys I, "for this is clean work compared to some they have to do. But, howsomever, they wouldn't do it."

"Oh, well," seys Josiah. "I shouldn't wonder if they would, jest to pass away time, jest for exercise, you know."

But I knew they didn't. And how under the sun the city is kept so sweet and clean is a mystery to me unless the folks along the road gets up and washes 'em off with a cloth durin' the night.

And I don't believe they do that, because it would wear on 'em—and everybody looked so good-humored and happy, and sort of refreshed and gay, that I gin up the idea. And so I had to put it away in the closet where I keep mysteries. (That closet is jest packed full and got to be enlarged.)

And all along the broad clean, beautiful streets, every now and then, and sometimes oftener, are little three-cornered parks, they call 'em reservations, full of green trees and flowers, and fountains and statutes. All over Washington, at almost every street corner, you'll find 'em, and even big parks full of all sorts of beautiful trees and flowers. Glossy leaved magnolias, one mass of brilliant rose color, and then trees bending down with pink and snowy bloom, a bendin' down, as if to compare their beauty with the frequent beds of flowers of all colors underneath 'em. And birds a dartin' and a singin' over 'em both as if they were dizzy with delight and couldn't settle the matter. And white statutes a looking serenely down or up into the blue heavens, as the case might be, but either way a seemin' lost in a vision of rapped beauty. And the musical murmur of the fountains a tellin' somethin' about their own ideas of beauty and glory in their own liquid language, well beknown to them, but not translated yet into ourn. And anon, or oftener, right out of the green velvet of the turf would be big, cool ponds of water, bound in white marble, with thousands of gold fish a dartin' in and out every way.

And all along the streets wuz houses, big and noble and grand looking, and little and clean and cozy looking, all a mingling' together and seemingly enjoying themselves first rate. And big churches, occasionally, if not oftener. The steeples are very high, and so are the characters of the professors, as far as I know.

And then we went by some big tarvens. Yes, Mr. Riggs and Mr. Willard keeps first-rate tarvens, so I wuz told, and so does Mr. Arlington, too. But they don't do it all themselves, they keep help. Why, good land, Miss Wilard and Miss Riggs and Miss Arlington couldn't begin to wash the dishes, to say nothin' of wipin'. They keep a hired girl, all on 'em, and may be more than one.

And all along this beautiful and enchantin' highway, a good deal oftener than once, would be massive and impressive marble buildins. Why, I never see anything so impressive, and Josiah never did. They towered up and spread out as a majesty that made 'em fit for the name they bore, public buildins. The public deserves it all. I like the public first rate, and so does Josiah. The public is a good old creeter a deal of the time. And way up over our heads, wherever we wuz, we could see the shinin' tall spire of Gen. George Washington's monument, a scemin' to point up towards the heavens, all the time a drawin' the minds of law makers up where they ought to be. But though George's head is way up in the clouds, mists and mud are present with his feet. And that is the way with most on 'em I spose, lofty, towerin' ambitions, and mere grovelin' ones, all in one monument.

Wall, anon, we see the walls of the Capitol, like a peom in white marble, a risin' out of a billowy sea of green; waves on waves of beautiful green of every tint, and blossoms, white, pink and cream color.

We got out of the car nigh to the buildin' and walked afoot up through the broad paths, a leadin' under that verdant shade. Great masses of flowers wuz sot down in the green velvet turf a borderin' the paths. Statutes looked out at us through the green boughs; birds sung to us—the posys nodded their perfumed heads at us—

And high up—up—over our heads, right out of that fairyland of beauty, riz the right walls of that most perfect and beautiful buildin' in the world.

And as I went up one of the broad flights of marble steps, as wide and high as from our house clear up the hill to Mr. Sewedy's, if not further, I nudged Josiah and says:

"Josiah, I don't believe I ever had such feelin's towards George as I have to-day."

"George who?" says he.

"That George," says I, turnin' round and pointin' to where he set on his monument, calm and noble, though considerable thin dressed. "He who wuz first in war, first in peace and in the hearts of his countrymen."

I didn't say much more agoin' up the steps; not that I wuz put to it for emotions, not at all, but my breath had gin out long before I got half way up.

But at last the steep assent wuz climbed, and we stood in the lofty marble halls where justice and other things are administered to us. My feelin's wuz powerful, but I controlled 'em with almost marble firmness, for I felt that I mustn't give way before 9 o'clock in the mornin', when so much wuz ahead of me. And anon, after roaming through lofty and majestical corridors as far, I should judge, as from our house to Janesville, I stood in the rotunda, that wonderful room, slookin' up in deep amuze and dumbfounder, up, up past the statutes and pictures, and alto and other reliefs, up, up into the high heavens of light that shine down through the many colors, I wuz fairly lost in contemplating the loftiness and grandeur, and I don't care who knows it. And before I wuz found my companion had discovered sunthin' very mysterious. It was a kind of a whisperin' block. You stood on a certain piece of marble floor, and a man way out in front of you will speak to you, and the voice will seem to come from right behind you, clost to you.—They said it was caused by some accustik property.

And I said I didn't know anything about the gentleman nor how much property he owned. But says I, "If he wants to sell any of this property and don't ask too much I would be glad to buy a little, it would be so handy for pardners to have sometimes when they were far off from their companions and want to whisper in a still small voice in their ear and speak to 'em sudden sometimes, unbeknown to 'em."

Josiah looked kinder angry, he didn't fall in with my idea of purchasing any of Mr. Accustic's property. And the man didn't make much of any answer. I spose they want to keep all their luxuries and necessities right there in the Capitol, and I spose the wives of public men need 'em as much if not more than I do, and Josiah looked very uneesy, so I didn't say no more, and, after feasting our eyes agin on the pictures and alto and other reliefs that wuz ornamenting the walls on every side, we almost tore ourselves away and wandered out in the other rooms. We went into rooms full and a runnin' over with books. They were piled up on shelves and on the floors and up overhead and in every place you can think on, and the man in charge (a perfect gentleman) he said they were going to have a new house to put 'em in.

And I seys: "It must be a good-sized one."

"Oh, yes," seys he. "It is goin' to be quite a buildin'. And I see for myself afterwards. Why, besides acres of vacant land, they have tore down good houses—as many houses as there is in Janesville—to make room for that buildin' to stand on. Why, I don't s'pose you will believe me, but it is goin' to spread out as fur as from our house clear over to old Grant Vickleson's and acrost to Aluniny Hagidone's and so round back to our house again. It is goin' to be a sight to behold and built of bricks. Why, streets are goin' right under it—have got to, if they go at all; it is goin' to be that immense. Good land, good land, the idee on't.

Wall, we wandered round into other lofty rooms where justice (and other things) are administered to us. And after travelin' through wide halls and rooms—every one on 'em nobler lookin' than the last one; after goin'—as far as we calculated—as from our house to Janesville and half way back agin—we at last found ourselves on the peaceful street in front of this stupendous and magnificent buildin'.

And then my pardner proposed that we should go and see the Smithsonian Institute.

And I seys: "I am ready, Josiah Allen, for if there is a man on the face of the earth that I honor it is Mr. Smithsonian."

JOSIAH ALLEN'S WIFE.

THE BRITISH MUSEUM.

Dr. Holmes' Impression of the Great Storehouse of Wisdom.

I made but two brief visits to the British Museum, and I can easily instruct my reader so that he will have no difficulty, if he will follow my teaching, in learning how not to see it. When he has a spare hour at his disposal let him drop in at the museum and wander among its books and its various collections. He will know as much about it as the fly that buzzes in at one window and out at another. If I were asked whether I brought away anything from my two visits, I should say, certainly I did. The fly sees some things, not very intelligently, but he cannot help seeing them. The great round reading room, with its silent students, impressed me very much. I looked at once for the Elgin marbles, but casts and photographs and engravings had made me familiar with their chief features. I thought I knew something of the sculptures brought from Nineveh, but I was astonished, almost awe-struck, at the sight of those mighty images which mingled with the visions of the Hebrew prophets. I did not marvel more at the skill and labor expended upon them by the Assyrian artists than I did at the enterprise and audacity which had brought them safely from the mounds under which they were buried to the light of day and the heart of a great modern city. I never thought I should live to see the Birs Nimroud laid open, and the tablets in which the history of Nebuchadnezzar was recorded spread before me. The Empire of the Spade in the world of history was founded at Nineveh by Layard, a great province added to it by Schliemann, and its boundaries extended by numerous explorers, some of whom are diligently at work at the present day. I feel very grateful that many of its revelations have been made since I have been a tenant of the travelling residence which holds so many secrets in its recesses.

There is one lesson to be got from a visit of an hour or two to the British Museum—namely, the fathomless abyss of our own ignorance. One is almost ashamed of his little paltry heartbeats in the presence of the rushing and roaring torrent of Niagara. So if he has published a little book or two, collected a few fossils, or coins, or vases, he is crushed by the vastness of the treasures in the library and the collections of this universe of knowledge.

I have shown how not to see the British Museum; I will tell how to see it.

Take lodgings next door to it—in a garret, if you cannot afford anything better.—and pass all your days at the museum during the whole period of your natural life. At three score and ten you will have some faint conception of the contents, significance and value of this great British institution, which is as nearly as any one spot the mant vital of human civilization, a stab at which by the danger of anarchy would fitly begin the reign of chaos.—[August Atlantic.

When Senator Ben Wade was a Circuit Judge in Ohio one of his decisions was reversed by the Supreme Court of the State and the case came back to him on mandate. He disregarded the mandate and followed the first decision. "But, your Honor," exclaimed the beaten counsel, "the Supreme Court reversed your former judgment." "Yes, so I have heard," was the reply. "I will give them a chance to get right." The decision was again reviewed, this time with Judge Wade's written opinion, and the upper court then decided that Wade was right.

Ex-Governor Sprague's circumstances are becoming much straitened. Though still living at Narragansett Pier, in his old place, "Canonchet," he makes no attempt to entertain now and the corridors of that beautiful palace re-echo only to the tread of his family and servants. His personal and political misfortunes have transformed him into a thorough misanthrope, and most of his time is passed in brooding over his losses and in railing at his real or imaginary foes.

Professor Elisha Gray is said to have made a new discovery, which promises as extraordinary results as are obtained from the telephone. It is called autotelegraphy and it is claimed that it will be possible with its use to write upon a sheet of paper and to have an autographic fac-simile of the writing reproduced by telegraph three hundred miles away and probably a much greater distance. The successful experiments have been limited to about three hundred miles.

A proctor at Oxford encountered on his rounds two undergraduates who were without their gowns, or out of bounds, or out of hours. He challenged one. "Your name and College?" They were given. Turning to the other—"And pray, sir, what might your name be?" "Julius Cæsar," was the reply. "What, sir—do you mean to say your name is Julius Cæsar?" "Sir, you did not ask me what it is, but what it might be."

Perservance and indomitable energy are the secret forces which lead up to the high places; without these agents, the mind becomes depressed at the first failure, and instead of moulding circumstances to suit the need, the mind is moulded by them, and reflects itself in the weak, unsteadfast character of its possessor.

Items of Interest.

During the last fiscal year there were issued 111,340 pension certificates.

Of the eight Justices now on the Supreme Court Bench four—Waite, Miller, Field and Bradley—are over seventy years of age.

James H. McDonald, the new Lieutenant Governor of Michigan, has an income of $40,000 a year on a mining investment which cost him less than $350.

Fred. Douglass, who is now in Europe, is to be given a rousing reception by the colored people of Washington on his return, which is expected to take place in September.

Among the pensions recently granted was one of Mrs. Brandon, aged 77, of Moundsville, W. Va. It is related of her that she raised 33 children, 28 of them men, and of the latter 18 served in the Union army during the war. One son was killed at Pittsburg Landing and one died in Andersonville, while every son of the remaining 14 was wounded in engagements.

Long John Wentworth, of Chicago, says "the summers nowadays are nothing. On the 28th of June, 1842," he continues, "I was living on the Cooley farm, near where Kinsley's restaurant stands now. It was so hot that we had to hang the thermometer in the well and keep fanning it to prevent it from bursting." This was the same day, no doubt, that all the Illinoise hens laid hard-boiled eggs.

President Cleveland has quite captivated Miss Phœbe Cozzens. She says: "I like to talk with him; he is so unassuming that one feels perfectly at ease in his presence. He has all the polish of President Arthur and is genial and pleasing in his conversation. He has a fine blue eye, which has such a kindly expression when he looks at you, but what I admire most is his soft, well-modulated voice."

One of General Grant's best answers to any question was his reply to William M. Evarts, who, in speaking about Mr. Beecher, asked: "Why is it, General, that a little fault in a clergyman attracts more notice than a great fault in an ordinary man?" "Perhaps," said the general, thoughtfully, it is for the same reason that a slight shadow passing over the pure snow is more readily seen than a river of dirt on the black earth."

Rev. John Jasper, whose, famous "Sun do move" sermon created such a sensation in 1878, is very old, but is still hale and vigorous. He was offered $400 to go to London and preach the sermon, and had many offers from other places but refused them all because he didn't think it right to leave his people. No use to try a bigger salary on Rev. Jasper. In this regard he is what the late Dr. Darvin would call a "spontaneous variation."

It is estimated that 21,000 miles of new railroad will be built in the United States this year, which at an average of $25,000 per mile, will amount to the enormous sum of $525,000,000. It is further estimated that 19,000 miles of old track will be re-laid with new rails at a cost of $100,000,000. Most of this money finally goes into the hands of the men who do the work, and with this and hundreds of other sources of employment before them, the prospects for American workmen is certainly enviable compared with that of any other country.

The Narragansett Gusher.

"Who do you think is the handsomest young married woman at the Pier?" was asked by a very pretty girl of her escort at the Hope last week.

"Why, Mrs. Clement C. Moore, of New York, without doubt. See! there she is, sitting on the other side of the room. What is more than being handsome, she is original, clever, witty and charming."

"I admire your taste. And whom do you consider the prettiest as the girl at the Pier?

"Miss Jane Turnbull, of New York. She is tall, slender, dark, with a fine profile, soft, melting eyes and a face full of expression."

"Why, I shall look upon you as a connoisseur of beauty."

Mrs. Edward Lees Coffee and Miss Lucy Coffee, of New York, have arrived at the Atwood House for the season. Miss Coffee is a beautiful brunette, and has been for several seasons the reigning belle here. Miss Coffee's arrival is hailed with delight by the young men of the Pier.

One evening Cardinal Manning was walking in West London, and passed a labouring man, who with his pipe in his mouth, was walking alone. "Good evening," said the prelate, by way of beginning a conversation which, before long, turned on the temperance question. The workman, it appeared, had not taken the pledge, having consulted a friend about the matter, who thought there was no need for him to do so, as he was no drunkard. The cardinal, probably thinking that example is better than precept, told the man that he had taken it, whereupon the latter replied promptly by asking, "Do you want it, your reverence?"

The papers are filled with discussion of the difference between legitimate and illegitimate speculation. Legitimate speculation is when you make money, illegitimate is when the other fellow makes money at your expense. —Boston Transcript.

John Willard Young, the youngest son of the late Brigham Young's first wife, is about forty-three years of age and has ten sons and ten daughters. He says his father left an estate worth about $2,500,000, or about $22,000 to each one of his children.

Gotham's Millionaires.

Who is the richest man in New York? is a question often asked here. John Jacob Astor undoubtedly. His fortune is placed at $200,000,000. A tidy sum indeed, but Jay Gould is pushing him pretty hard, and the Vanderbilt boys are close behind the king of Wall street. Here is a list made up by a Wall street broker that is as nearly accurate as any such estimates can be: Cornelius Vanderbilt, $100,000,000; W. K. Vanderbilt, $90,000,000; Russell Sage, $60,000,000; Winslow, Lanier & Co., $30,000,000; D. O. Mills, Whitelaw Reid's father-in-law, $20,000,000; Pierrepont Morgan, $18,000,000; Bob Garrett, $20,000,000; Fred Vanderbilt, $15,000,000; Sidney Dillon, $10,000,000; Addison Cammack, $8,000,000; John Rockafeller, the Standard Oil man, $10,000,000; H. Rockafeller, his brother, $8,000,000; August Belmont, $20,000,000; Cyrus W. Field, $10,000,000; Deacon S. V. White, member-elect of the new Congress, $7,000,000; R. P. Flower, $6,000,000; Wash Connor, Jay Gould's old broker, who has just married the divorced wife of the ex-lottery king, Simmons, $3,000,000; Victor Newcomb, $4,000,000; Henry Hart, who is manipulating Pacific Mail, $10,000,000; Oswald Ottendorfer, editor of the Staats Zeitung, $5,000,000; James Gordon Bennett, $10,000,000; Austin Corbin, $30,000,000; Erastus Winan, $3,000,000; and there are a score of others who are worth from $1,000,000 to $10,000,000 each.—[Cor. Chicago Mail.

A good all-round education is likely to prove more serviceable to girls in the home and in society than one or two supreme accomplishments. Many of us make the mistake of confounding education with acquirements, and of running together mental development and intellectual specialisation. The women of whom we are most proud in our own history were not remarkable for any special intellectual acquirements so much as for general character and the harmonious working of will and morality.

That Tired Feeling

The warm weather has a debilitating effect, especially upon those who are within doors most of the time. The peculiar, yet common, complaint known as "that tired feeling," is the result. This feeling can be entirely overcome by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which gives new life and strength to all the functions of the body.

"I could not sleep; had no appetite. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and soon began to sleep soundly; could get up without that tired and languid feeling; and my appetite improved." R. A. SANFORD, Kent, Ohio.

Strengthen the System

Hood's Sarsaparilla is characterized by three peculiarities: 1st, the combination of remedial agents; 2d, the proportion; 3d, the process of securing the active medicinal qualities. The result is a medicine of unusual strength, effecting cures hitherto unknown. Send for book containing additional evidence.

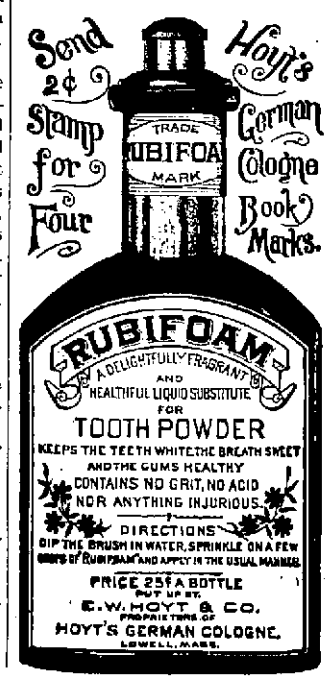

"Hood's Sarsaparilla tones up my system, purifies my blood, sharpens my appetite, and seems to make me over." J. P. THOMPSON, Register of Deeds, Lowell, Mass.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla beats all others, and is worth its weight in gold." I. BARRINGTON, 130 Bank Street, New York City.

FISKE FUND.

THE TRUSTEES of the Fiske Fund at the annual meeting of the Rhode Island Medical Society, held June 9th, 1887, announced that they had awarded a premium of two hundred dollars for the best essay on "Membraneous Enteritis," to an essay bearing the motto "Labor ipse Voluptas," and on breaking the seal of the accompanying packet the author was found to be James B. Field, of Lowell, Mass. On the other subject proposed for the year 1887 they make no award.

They propose the following subjects for the year 1888:—

I. What changes has the acceptance of the germ theory made in measures for the prevention and treatment of consumption?

II. Antisepsis in medicine and surgery; with original observations and experiments.

For the best dissertation on either subject, worthy of a premium, they offer the sum of two hundred dollars.

Every competitor for a premium is expected to conform to the following regulations, viz.:—

To forward to the Secretary of the Trustees on or before the tenth day of May, 1888, free of all expense, a copy of his dissertation, with a motto written thereon, and also a sealed packet, having the same motto inscribed upon the outside, and his name and place of residence within.

Previously to receiving the premium awarded, the author of the successful dissertation must transfer to the Trustees all his right title and interest in and to the same, for the use, benefit and behoof of the Fiske Fund.

Catarrh to Consumption.

Catarrh in its destructive force stands next to and undoubtedly leads on to Consumption. It is, therefore, singular that those afflicted with this fearful disease should not make it the object of their lives to rid themselves of it. Deceptive remedies concocted by ignorant pretenders to medical knowledge have weakened the confidence of the great majority of sufferers in all advertized remedies. They become resigned to a life of misery rather than torture themselves with doubtful palliatives.

But this will never do. Catarrh must be met at every stage and combated with all our might. In many cases the disease has assumed dangerous symptoms. The bones and cartilage of the nose, the organs of hearing, of seeing and tasting so affected as to be useless, the uvula so elongated, the throat so inflamed and irritated as to produce a constant and distressing cough.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never-failing.

Each packet contains one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and an IMPROVED INHALER, with treatise; price $1.

Bennett's New Paper In Paris.

There has been a silent but rather effective little revolution in Anglo-American journalism in Paris within the last few days. The New York Herald has become proprietor of the ancient and aristocratic sheet known as Galignani's Messenger, a journal established towards the beginning of the century by an Italian gentleman, whose descendants have become the heirs to a large fortune, which they have administered with much dignity and generosity. The journal has long been conducted in the old-fashioned style just as it was in the days of post chaises and packet ships, paying little attention to news and devoting much of its space to solemn paragraphs concerning Lord this, Earl of that or his grace the Duke of the other. In process of time it yielded somewhat to American influences, patronized the telegraph, had an American editor, who made copious extracts from the transatlantic exchanges, and otherwise slanted toward the West; now it has given up most of its old features and has become a progressive and independent organ, which does not even hesitate to head its editorials with the freshest and raciest of New York slang. Who knows but that Mr. Bennett may found upon the broad bases of the old and stately Galignani a cosmopolitan journal which will be famous from the rising to the setting sun.—[Edward King in Boston Journal, Saturday.

A Little Girl's Answers.

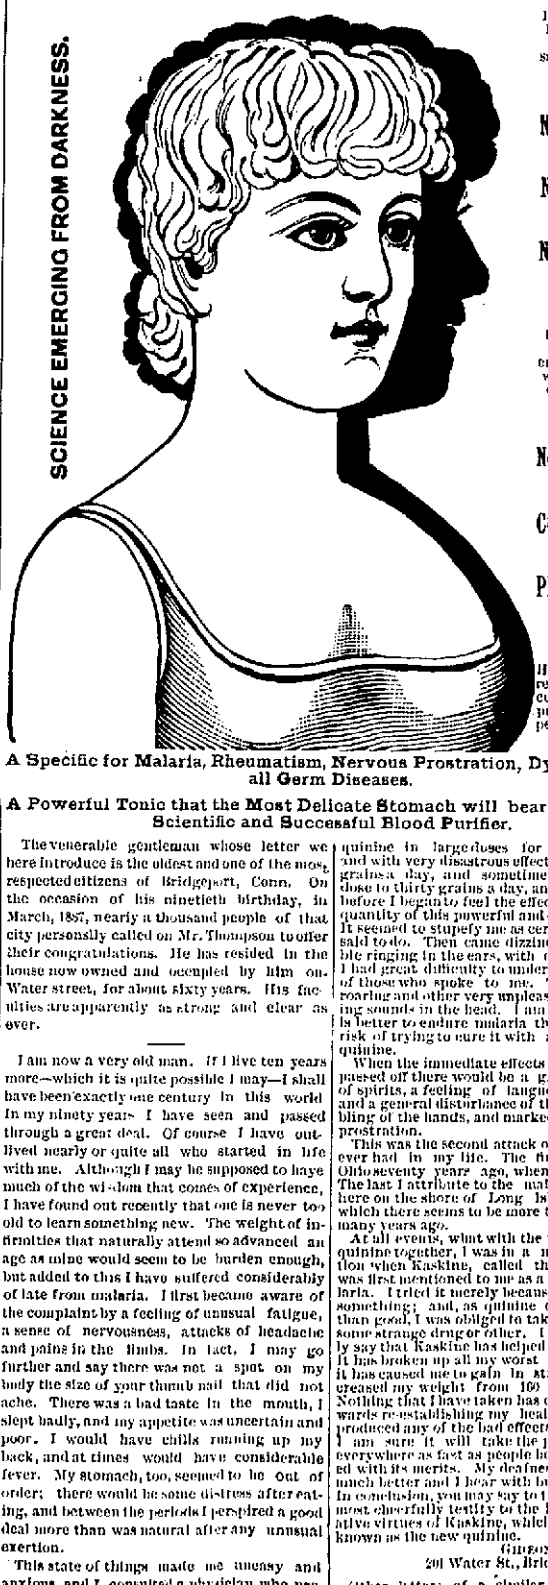

A little girl was asked the reason why the Israelites made a golden calf, she replied: "'Cause they hadna as muckle siller as would mak' a coo." Another Scotch girl, at an examination, gave a pretty definition when asked, "What does patience mean?"—Wait a wee an' dinna weary." During a School Board examination in the west of Scotland the examiner asked a little girl, "What is meant by, He was amply rewarded?" —"Paid for 't." "No, no. You are quite wrong. Suppose you were to go into a baker's shop and buy a half-quarter loaf and lay down four-pence, would you say you had amply rewarded the baker?" Unhesitatingly the girl replied in the affirmative. "Why?" "Because the loaf's only two-pence three farthings," was the unlooked-for answer. The inspector let that girl off easily during the remainder of the lesson.—[Chamber's Journal.

A Specific for Malaria, Rheumatism, Nervous Prostration, Dyspepsia and all Germ Diseases.

A Powerful Tonic that the Most Delicate Stomach will bear. The Most Scientific and Successful Blood Purifier.

The venerable gentleman whose letter we here introduce is the oldest and one of the most respected citizens of Bridgeport, Conn. On the occasion of his ninetieth birthday, in March, 1887, nearly a thousand people of that city personally called on Mr. Thompson to offer their congratulations. He has resided in the house now owned and occupied by him on Water street, for about sixty years. His faculties are apparently as strong and clear as ever.

I am now a very old man. If I live ten years more—which it is quite possible I may—I shall have been exactly one century in this world. In my ninety years I have seen and passed through a great deal. Of course I have outlived nearly or quite all who started in life with me. Although I may be supposed to have much of the wisdom that comes of experience, I have found out recently that one is never too old to learn something new. The weight of infirmities that naturally attend so advanced an age as mine would seem to be burden enough, but added to this I have suffered considerably of late from malaria. I first became aware of the complaint by a feeling of unusual fatigue, a sense of nervousness, attacks of headache and pains in the limbs. In fact, I may go further and say there was not a spot on my body the size of your thumb nail that did not ache. There was a bad taste in the mouth, I slept badly, and my appetite was uncertain and poor. I would have chills running up my back, and at times would have considerable fever. My stomach, too, seemed to be out of order; there would be some distress after eating, and between the periods I perspired a good deal more than was natural after any unusual exertion.

This state of things made me uneasy and anxious, and I consulted a physician who prescribed quinine. By the way, I should mention that I had a good deal of aching in the back, as though I had done a hard day's work or carried a load too great for my strength. I took quinine in large doses for a long while, and with very disastrous effects. I took twelve grains a day, and sometimes increased the dose to thirty grains a day, and it was not long before I began to feel the effect of so large a quantity of this powerful and dangerous drug. It seemed to stupefy me as certain poisons are said to do. Then came dizziness and a terrible ringing in the ears, with deafness, so that I had great difficulty to understand the speech of those who spoke to me. There was also roaring and other very unpleasant and annoying sounds in the head. I am not sure but it is better to endure malaria than to run the risk of trying to cure it with a medicine like quinine.

When the immediate effects of the quinine passed off there would be a great depression of spirits, a feeling of languor and fatigue, and a general disturbance of the nerves, trembling of the hands, and marked weakness and prostration.

This was the second attack of malaria I had ever had in my life. The first occurred in Ohio seventy years ago, when I was a youth. The last I attribute to the malarial influences here on the shore of Long Island Sound, of which there seems to be more than there was many years ago.

At all events, what with the malaria and the quinine together, I was in a miserable condition when Kaskine, called the new quinine, was first mentioned to me as a remedy for malaria. I tried it merely because I wanted to do something; and, as quinine did more harm than good, I was obliged to take the chance of some strange drug or other. I can now honestly say that Kaskine has helped me wonderfully. It has broken up all my worst symptoms, and it has caused me to gain in strength and increased my weight from 160 to 182 pounds. Nothing that I have taken has done so much towards re-establishing my health. It has not produced any of the bad effects of quinine, and I am sure it will take the place of quinine everywhere as fast as people become acquainted with its merits. My deafness is now very much better and I hear with but little trouble. In conclusion, you may say to the public that I most cheerfully testify to the healing and curative virtues of Kaskine, which is worthy to be known as the new quinine.

Lord Beaconsfield says:—"There is no mortification, however keen, no misery, however desperate, which the spirit of woman cannot in some degree lighten or alleviate."

High Old Time For Deadheads.—"Why don't you write another play, Buckstone?" said a friend one day to the eminent comedian. "My dear fellow," was the answer, "I'm too busy writing orders."

The Duke of Roquelaire was told one day in Paris that two ladies had quarrelled. "Have they called each other ugly or old?" asked the duke. "No, sir." "Very good—then I shall be able to reconcile them."

A friend of ours says it is a remarkable fact that when the price of eggs gets very high the hens quit laying. The man who made this observation is a brother to the chap who discovered that large rivers always run past large cities.

The desire to say some great thing has prevented the utterance of many a wholesome word; and anxiety to accomplish some wonderful work has crushed in the bud many a humble deed of exceeding grace and sweetness.

"I received a lot of rejected manuscripts to-day," said Titmarsh to a friend. "Did you? I had no idea you had any ambition to shine as an author." "Not exactly that. You see, my sweetheart and I quarreled, and she returned all my letters."

Men are strange creatures. They will waste an hour hunting for a collar-button instead of having an extra supply and letting their wives find the missing one. You never see a woman look for the pin she drops. Her husband finds it when he is walking about with bare feet.

"You have dated your letter a week ahead. It is not so late in the month by one week, you spalpane." "Troth, boy, indade, an' it's just mesilf what is wanting sweet Kathleen to git it in advance of the mail. Sure I'll not care if she gits it three days afore it is written, me darlint."

Constitutional.—"You ought to be ashamed of yourself, a great big man like you, to be a beggar and a tramp. You oughtn't to be afraid of work." "I know it, mum, but I can't help it. You see, my nurse frightened me once in a dark room when I was a baby, and I have been timid ever since."

Matrimonial Battledore and Shuttlecock.—Husband: "If you only had the ability to cook as my mother used to do, I should be happy, dear." Wife: "And if you only had the ability to make money enough to buy things to cook as my father used to do, I too should be happy, dear."

A lady whose husband had for several Sundays following, been jeeringly telling her that the great motive with women in going to church was merely to display their bonnets, at last lost all patience, and said to him, "Then, sir, I suppose the reason why you gentlemen so rarely come to church is because you cannot show your hats?"

He Got His Drink.—It is very difficult to get a drink in Minneapolis on Sunday, but a shrewd fellow got one the other evening. He went into a drug store with a big insect in his hand, asked the clerk what it was, went into raptures over the rare specimen he had found, and bought ten cents worth of alcohol to preserve it in. Then he went out and had his drink.

There are two distinctive parts of all true benevolence—the feeling of sympathy and the practical rendering of the needed help. It is seldom that both of these are simultaneously or harmoniously developed; one or the other usually has a decided preponderance, and occasionally one will be found almost entirely separated from the other.

Carpets of Thirty Years Ago.

Thirty years ago, when Marlborough House had not as yet become the abode of our heir apparent (or, as Mr. Burnand called him at the Newspaper Press Fund dinner last week, our visible Prince) it was used for a somewhat curious kind of exhibition. Its chief rooms were filled with a collection of articles then in every day use, which had been gathered in order to show how utterly ugly and false to the true principles of art were most of the common objects of the domestic life of the period. There were samples of those terribly gorgeous carpets we then affected, covered with cabbage-like red roses and other Brobdingnagian floral specimens. There were specimens, too, of the tiger hearth rugs then so common and of the crudely colored wall papers of the day, together with a number of the hideously shaped jugs and generally tasteless crockery ware in use. The exhibition was, in short, a veritable collection of horrors, though it is satisfactory to know that the improvement in all directions has been most unmistakable since it took place. I hear that, with a view of marking this improvement, a kind of jubilee exhibition is being planned in which we shall see systematically arranged the changes in domestic decorative art which have taken place since Queen Victoria was crowned. The public announcement of this interesting display may be expected in a day or two.—[From the London Figaro.

Perseverance, working in the right direction, grows with time, and when steadily practised, even by the most humble, will rarely fail of its reward. Trusting in the help of others is of comparatively little use. The grandest inventions have been completed by the diligent pursuit of perseverance. The great success of this virtue is seen in the proverb, "A falling drop at last will cave a stone."

CAPTAIN S. GREENWOOD,
Master of the Steamship Kanawha.

About a year ago he observed a strange change in his feelings. He felt tired instead of vigorous; nervous instead of strong. His appetite became poor and his sleep broken.—He tried to overcome these feelings, but they would not go. He then noticed pains and irritation in the water channels, and that the fluids passed were often thick and with a scum on top or a brick-dust sediment at the bottom. All these were the sure symptoms of that fearful disease, Catarrh of the Bladder, which has always been considered incurable, and they continued until the captain was in a terrible condition. But he is the picture of health and vigor to-day, and he owes it entirely to that wonderful medicine, Hunt's Remedy. Capt. Greenwood says: "I am so certain of the great value of Hunt's Remedy, that I always carry a supply on shipboard for the use of my men, and I prescribe it when they are ailing. After curing me as it did, and restoring my wife (whom the best physicians of New York said was dying of tumor), to perfect health, I swear by it."

Mexican War Veteran.

The wonderful efficacy of Swift's Specific as a remedy and cure for rheumatism and all blood diseases, has never had a more conspicuous illustration than this case affords. The candid, unsolicited and emphatic testimony given by the venerable gentleman must be accepted as convincing and conclusive. The writer is a prominent citizen of Mississippi. The gentleman to whom Mr. Martin refers, and to whom he is indebted for the advice to which he owes his final relief from years of suffering, is Mr. King, for many years the popular night clerk of the Lawrence House, at Jackson.

JACKSON, MISS., April 29, 1887.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC COMPANY, Atlanta, Ga.:

Gentlemen—I have been an invalid pensioner for forty years, having contracted pulmonary and other diseases in the Mexican War, but not till the 1st of March, 1875, did I feel any symptoms of rheumatism. On that day I was suddenly stricken with that disease in both hips and ankles. For twenty days I walked on crutches. Then the pain was less violent, but it shifted from joint to joint. For weeks I would be totally disabled, either on one side of my body or the other. The pain never left me a moment for eleven years and seven months—that is from March 1, 1875, when I was first attacked, to October 1, 1886, when I was cured. During these eleven years of intense suffering I tried innumerable prescriptions from various physicians, and tried everything suggested by friends, but if I ever received the least benefit from any medicine taken internally or externally, I am not aware of it. Finally, about the first of September, I made arrangements to go to the Hot Springs of Arkansas, having despaired of every other remedy, when I accidentally met an old acquaintance, Mr. King, now of the Lawrence House of this city. He had once been a great sufferer from rheumatism, and, as I supposed, had been cured by a visit to Hot Springs. But when I met him he told me that his visit to the Hot Springs was in vain—he found no relief. On his return from Hot Springs he heard, for the first time, of the S. S. S. as a remedy for rheumatism. He tried it and six bottles made a complete cure. Several years have passed since, but he has had no return of the disease.

I immediately returned to try it. In September I took four bottles, and by the time of October 1 was well—as far as the rheumatism was concerned. All pain had disappeared, and I HAVE NOT FELT A TWINGE OF IT SINCE.

I have no interest in making this statement other than the hope that it may direct some other sufferer to a sure source of relief, and if it has this result I am well rewarded for my trouble. I am very respectfully and truly your friend.

JOHN P. SANBORN, Editor and Proprietor

SATURDAY, JULY 23, 1887.

The President and the country are to be congratulated on Mr. Cleveland's escape from injury in the railroad accident of Saturday.

The 24th annual fair of the New England Agricultural Society will be held in Worcester, Mass., Aug. 30 and 31, September 1st and 2nd.

The Concord School of Philosophy opened on Wednesday with warm weather, a fair attendance, and a lecture and discussion on "Arlstotle's Doctrine of Reason."

The Boston Herald says that in its judgment the trial races for the America cup should be sailed in Newport or Marblehead waters. We second the motion so far as Newport is concerned.

Work is to be begun at once on the cable road extension of the Providence, Warren and Bristol railroad in Providence. It is expected that before next winter the passenger cars will be running up to the Crawford street bridge.

It is said that one reason why there are so few people at the so-called popular resorts is the fact of the flurry in Wall street occuring just before the time when the brokers of limited means usually take their cottages.

In the United States Circuit Court in New York, Thursday, Judge Wallace rendered a decision in favor of the Bell Telephone Company, declaring that A. Graham Bell is the original inventor. The Bell Company has won all cases thus far.

Doubtful and conflicting reports have been received of the death of explorer Stanley in Africa. The reports are discredited in London. It is thought to be impossible for any report to reach civilization in regard to him at the early date.

The Connecticut State Board of Education seems to be difficult to please. There is no text-book on physiology that it is satisfied with, so it is having one printed especially for use in the public schools of the Nutmeg State. Forty thousand copies have been contracted for.

The Ohio Democrats met Thursday, and after finding that they could not again draw out the old war horse of the party, ex-Senator Thurman, nominated a young man by the name of Powell for Governor. Next week the Republicans will meet and renominate Gov. Foraker who will doubtless be re-elected without a very serious contest.

The fears of those people who were afraid that if Blaine went to England he would put his political foot in matters are allayed, when it is now learned that he didn't attend the dinner to Parnell and isn't going to the Naval review at Spithead. This great country now breathes a sigh of relief. For once Blaine is on the fence, necessarily so far he is between a fire on either side of him.

The national convention of teachers at Chicago passed some very comprehensive resolutions before adjournment on Friday. They favor national aid for Southern schools, commend the National Bureau of Education, recommend the passage of laws compelling instruction in physiology and hygiene, with special reference to the injurious effects of alcohol and narcotics, and demand laws suppressing impure literature and the sale of tobacco to minors.

The Providence politicians are beginning to get anxious about the coming city election which takes place in November. The Democrats developed so much strength last spring that it makes the canvass a rather doubtful one this fall. It looks now as though Augustus N. Miller, a Democrat, but at present President of a Republican Common Council, might be the next mayor of that city. A majority of the wards will remain Republican as heretofore, which will elect a Republican City Council.

No one likes to hear of killing under any circumstances, but if ever there was an instance where homicide was justifiable the disposal of Hugh O'Connor, a member of a gang of Dry Dock villains in New York on Sunday by Mr. Brophy, is one. A gang of ruffians attacked a peaceable car-driver and Mr. Brophy, who is universally conceded to be a respectable citizen, went to his assistance, and finally being compelled to fight for his own life he killed his assailant. The coroner's jury entirely exonerated him.

The wise man always prepares for a rainy day and there is no reason why municipal authorities should not be in readiness for emergencies. The sanitary condition of Newport at present is generally good; it might be improved by additional sewerage, on which point we shall have something to say hereafter. But notwithstanding our generally satisfactory condition in the direction indicated it would be well for the authorities to prepare for emergencies. Newport to-day is without a building where a person suffering from an infectious disease could be taken. Some steps should be taken at once to provide one in a remote part of the town. It matters not where it is placed so long as it is far apart from dwelling houses. But nevertheless some action should be taken in this matter at once.

Women have the franchise in Washington Territory, but the Supreme Court has just decided that they are not legal jurors. Next thing they will be denying a woman's right to act as constable or enlist in the militia.

The Chicago Tribune is impressed by the fact that in the Presidential canvass of the Toledo Blade the only man to come anywhere near Blaine and Sherman was Robert T. Lincoln, who had 2237 votes as first choice for President and 2531 as second choice, while he may almost be said to have had no competitor in the field for the Vice Presidency. The Tribune says: "There never was a clearer indication of public sentiment than that if there is to be a dark horse at all it will be the son of Abraham Lincoln." Of Mr. Lincoln's qualities the Tribune says cordially:

"With the inauguration of General Garfield he came prominently before the public, and during the four years he was at the head of the War Department he showed himself to be level headed, honorable and modest. The people were well pleased to find the son of the Great Emancipator free from the vices and the follies so often found in the sons of illustrious sires. He made no enemies. Alike popular with both wings of the Republican party, his candidacy would arouse no animosities. If he lacks magnetic power—one of the prime qualities of his father—he is peculiarly strong in the negative virtues. Should the convention find itself dead-locked it would make no mistake in taking him up and once more doing battle under the leadership of Lincoln."

The Baltimore civil service reformers, who have recently expressed with some emphasis their view of the harm which the Cleveland Administration has done to the cause of reform in Maryland, will notice with curious emotions that Morris A. Thomas is back again in his old haunts, ready for his old work as a trusted leader in the Gorman gang, and one who does not stop for trifles. Thomas is in the employ of the Government as an Indian Inspector, but that responsibility does not deter him from resuming command of the Baltimore plug-uglies. Reform in this administration is spelt with a capital R. and Gormon, Higgins and Thomas are among its exponents.

The cholera has reached southern Europe, and we may soon expect to hear of the advent of the yellow fever in our gulf ports. If it were not for the admirable sanitary precautions of the Louisiana board of health, New Orleans would have been scourged already as well as other points on the gulf which are now following the Louisiana system. A terrible sacrifice is needed to make Congress awake to the importance of investigating the remedial treatment of Carmona in Mexico and Freire in Brazil so strongly advised by the leading physicians of the country before the House and Senate committees last winter.

The school question in Georgia has assumed a new and curious phase. Trouble over the schools in the South has usually come from any attempt on the part of colored pupils to gain admission to schools of white children. In Georgia the situation is reversed. Atlanta University, an institution established for colored youth, is so well managed and furnishes a training so excellent that certain white youth, mostly professors' sons, have sought to secure the same advantages. The Legislature has been called upon to cope with this tremendous question, and a bill has actually been introduced making it an indictable offence to admit white pupils into colored schools.

The Charleston (S. C.) News says that "the G. A. R. must behave better or break up." Fortunately the organization is located beyond the reach of the masked riders who break up negro labor societies. Furthermore, the News forgets that the Commander-in-chief of the Grand Army was one of the first to seek that city after its recent calamity, and urged and influenced its members to contribute liberally to the sufferers.

The Boston Pilot (Irish organ) threatens a bolt if the Democrats propose free trade; and declares that the personal experience of the naturalized citizens in the Democratic party, of the two systems (free-trade and protection) "is worth more than all the theories of political economy quacks, college sophomores, callow statesmen, Anglomaniacs and paid organs of the English manufactures."

Democratic papers are now giving General Tuttle's war record. During the war he was a Democrat, but while most active Democratic politicians who stayed at home were a source of encouragement to the enemy, there were Democrats in the army in large numbers who were first rate soldiers. We trust, therefore, that Democratic papers will not assume that a Democratic soldier was naturally an inefficient one.

The blossoming of the orange groves of Florida this month astonishes the oldest inhabitant. The Orlando Sentinel says that the groves are in as full bloom as they usually are in February and March, and that a large crop of fruit may be looked for. It is an ill season that does not foster something. When the crop of the lake states are blighted the gulf states restore the balance. America is an all round country.

The San Diego Sun publishes the names of purchasers of land on Coronado Beach where for some time real estate has been booming. From Rhode Island are the names of P. F. Dodge, of Providence; Thomas J. Burns, Mary C. Burns, of Pawtucket. J. W. Cavanaugh, of Newport, and Mrs. M. A. Nagle, of Marysville, Cal.; sister of the last named.

Sharp is the name of the Prohibition candidate for Governor in Ohio. He is a banker and an artist. A few days ago he made a large crayon cartoon lampooning both the Republican and Democratic parties and placed it in his bank window. The result was that he lost a dozen of his largest depositors in half an hour. The cartoon has disappeared.

SUMMER IN HAVANA.

Cool Weather When Compared with New York—Sunstrokes Unknown—Theatrical Competition and Refreshing Breezes Place Enjoyment Within the Reach of All.

HAVANA, July, 13, 1887.

Editor of the Mercury:—Summer time in Cuba is not nearly as unbearable as many persons suppose. Although it is very hot, 80° to 88° from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M., a fresh breeze almost always blowing makes this degree of heat quite comfortable. We never have the great extremes which are suffered at New York and other Northern cities. Sunstrokes are not known here, yet the laborer works all day exposed to the clear sun's rays. I do not know what would happen to the Spaniard or Cuban, should the heat reach 100°. It might possibly have the effect to stop the national amusement, "a Bull fight on Sunday," but I do not believe it would, and hot as it is here, hardly a Sunday passes without this most cruel of performances, and they are witnessed by crowds of people in the hottest part of the day. Just now there is a lively competition among the theatres. The "Tacon," commenced the fight by selling tickets at $1,60, Spanish bank bills, worth in good U. S. C. 60 cents, when the "Albisu" and other theatres put their prices down, and now one can have a fair evening's entertainment for the sum of 12 to 25 cents in a first class theatre.

The parks are nightly thronged with people out to enjoy the cool moonlight nights, and fine music which is furnished by excellent artists, and the scene in the "Parque Central," around the statue of the ex-Queen Isabella, the Louvre, and the entrance to the Tacon theatre of a Sunday evening is one, once seen, will be long remembered. Many people now in Newport made a flying visit to Cuba last winter but few of them remained long enough to enjoy any good from this delightful climate, even in the summer time. J. R. S.

The collision on Tuesday off Spit Head between the Ajax and Devastation is another proof that the unwieldy monsters of the deep, called ironclads, have had their day. Though they came in contact by accident, one was seriously damaged, and reported as leaking fast. A swift steel ram could undoubtedly disable any of the mammoth ships afloat as the sword-fish impales the whale. It certainly looks as if Admiral Porter's harbor guard of torpedo boats and rams was to be the successor of the exploded or sunk leviathan.

A Presbyterian missionary among the Indians suggests that doctors desirous of missionary work could have an excellent chance to break up the superstitions about the medicine men. In the course of time it is quite possible that when the Indians saw that the white doctor did not have to sit hours at a time by the patient, making the while unearthly noises, nor took a horse as a fee, and that he suffered himself to be interrupted, the newcomer would be permitted to make his cures.

Mr. J. Rollin Tilton, one of the most distinguished American artists now residing abroad, arrived Tuesday from Rome, Italy, where he has his charming studio. Some of Mr. Tilton's productions have found their way into many of the public and private picture galleries of Europe and America, and all of this eminent artist's work has received well nigh universal approval of art critics. Mr. Tilton, who has a large acquaintance among our summer residents, is at 44 Church street for a brief season.

With somewhat unexpected humility Chicago multiplies the names in her directory by a figure less than the five which New York uses under the same conditions in ascertaining the population to be credited to her. Thus New York's estimated 1,600,000 comes from 325,000 directory names, while Chicago's 250,000 names are made to yield a population estimate of but 800,000. It ought to be said, furthermore, that census modesty is extremely rare.

A sad and fatal accident occurred on Friday evening of last week, to a young child of Mr. and Mrs. Nolan residing on Bath road. The mother, who desired to leave the kitchen for a moment, put back upon the stove a kettle of boiling water. The child, doubtless attracted by the movement, caught hold of it directly the parent went away, upset the water over itself and was so badly scalded that it died the next morning in convulsions.

The Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial has discovered a plot on the part of the Standard Oil Company to capture the New York delegation for the President and then run him out of the convention in order to nominate Secretary Whitney for President. The public will wait for confirmation.

Professor Louis Duncan, late of the United States navy, now associate professor of Philosophy in Johns Hopkins University and member of many mathematical societies at home and abroad, was married June 29, at Philadelphia, to Miss Edith Smith McKee, of that city.

Mr. Watterson says "that there will be material variations in the next campaign in the way of less personal scandal and calumny and more old-fashioned party bitterness. Real issues are gathering with greater positivity and clearness."

It is worthy of notice that when a man attempts to make it out that our fishermen are all wrong and those of Canada are all right in regard to the present dispute, he closes by declaring himself in favor of free fish and free trade generally.

Mons. Salanson, Secretary of the French legation, is at the Whitehall.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

Hot Weather—Silver in the Treasury—Complaint from the Medical Department—The Harvey Forgeries—Etc.

Correspondent of the Mercury

WASHINGTON D. C., July 21, 1887.

The record of 100° in the shade on Saturday at the U. S. Signal Office is the highest ever recorded there. "In the shade" at the Signal Office means that the thermometer is hung in a sort of box on the outside of the building closed in by shutters on all four sides. This gives both shade and ventilation, while, on the melting asphalt of the pavement below, neither shade or ventilation were to be found, but a temperature of 105° and 108° under cover. All work continued however, both among the inside and outside forces of the government in spite of the heat of the torrid zone, without its merciful breezes.

The immense new vault for silver, at the Treasury is being rapidly pushed forward, and the Western front of the State, War and Navy Department approaches completion. Work on the portico and entrance, and the grading of the sidewalk is daily progressing. Soon the western wing of this handsome building, which is an enormous parallelogram of grey granite, will present the same appearance as the Eastern wing. The latter looks out upon the President's house and gardens, and is occupied by the Navy Department. The South wing is the State Department, while the North and West wings belong to the War Department. It is expected that eventually the whole building will be given over to the business of the War Department, and others erected for the Navy and State. When the inside work on the Western wing is finished one of the handsomest structures in the world will be completed. A structure presenting but one defect to the observer. It has too many windows. They are not far enough apart and give to the building the appearance of a huge conservatory. This defect is not noticeable, however, from a distance.

A complaint comes from the Medical Corps of the Navy through Surgeon General Gunnell, of the difficulty in filling the continually increasing vacancies, caused by the death, resignations, and retirements, in the list of Surgeons in our Navy. At present there are fourteen vacancies, in the Medical Corps and Dr. Gunnell, fears there will be many more if the actual hardships imposed upon Surgeons, who enter the Navy, are not removed. Eligible young physicians will not enter the Navy on hearing of the difficulties and disadvantages, and of the unfairness on board ship, and in reference to promotion, that junior Surgeons have to contend with. The examinations are as severe and the requirements as great as those for the Medical Corps of the Army, while the advantages of the army are so much greater, that last year four young Surgeons of the Navy, resigned to take positions in the Army. Surgeon General Gunnell, hopes through the statement of these facts and his recommendations in his annual report, to remedy these evils and to bring the Naval medical corps up to the same standing as that of the Army. If he can do this, the vacancies in his corps will not long go begging as they now do.

The President and Mrs. Cleveland are expected here on Wednesday morning. If the heat has been as intense in central New York, as it is in Washington, the President and his wife will be more comfortable at home taking it easy, than junketing around in hot red velvet lined sweat boxes, otherwise termed special cars.

The recent forgeries of Harvey, late of the Treasury Department, and the defalcation of Mr. Bacon, disbursing clerk of the Patent Office, lately deceased, with the memory of other irregularities committed by financial agents of the Government have caused the Secretary of the Treasury to order an investigation of the different disbursing officers of the several Departments. On Saturday, the investigators with a corps of expert accountants, began their examination with the Interior Department. The largest sum paid out by the Government is paid through this office. Cash payments amounting to nearly $6,000,000, annually pass through the hands of Mr. Evans, the disbursing clerk. The examining committee arrived at the Interior Department early on Saturday morning, and though unexpected were heartily welcomed by the disbursing officer and his assistants. The books of the office were turned over to the examiners, and they had so easy a task that by three o'clock, they had examined all the books, counted all the cash, and had satisfied themselves that everything was straight in that branch of the Government.

That concluded the investigating work for the day. The other offices will be duly examined in turn. So much stress is laid upon every dishonest act, and rascals are given so much prominence through their misdeeds that we are apt to think that only scamps succeed, and to forget that honesty not only succeeds oftenest, but it is oftenest to be met with. The examination of the Treasury officials will prove that the rogues are the exception and honest men the rule, among the Government employees, as it is the rule everywhere. SCRIBE.

A monster conduit that was built at a cost of $500,000 to carry the waste from several main sewers in Newark, N. J., to the bay, is now denounced as a failure and experts are to be appointed to investigate.

Going Abroad To Learn Home News.

The following clipping from a Pittsburg paper will be read with some amusement, if not with profit:—

A Newport Amusement.

A very new and very original device, combining amusement with instruction, has recently been introduced at Newport among the early arrivals at the cottages. A certain number of young ladies, mostly debutantes, meet at the house of one of their number once a week. The hostess produces a story or sketch of some kind especially prepared by her for the occasion. The girls seat themselves around a table whereon are pens, paper, ink and several French dictionaries. A gentleman with a bald head and waxed moustache is generally announced at the beginning of the seance. This is Prof. de M., the famous French teacher. He bows to each of the ladies in turn and then sits quietly down in the corner to read his Figaro. Meanwhile the hostess begins to read her manuscript aloud very slowly, and pausing for a second or two at the end of each sentence. The others seize the pens and papers and write down a French translation of the article. If any girl is obliged to stop, pause and reflect, or worse still, if she be forced to hunt up a word in the dictionary, she, of course, loses time and her translation suffers accordingly. When they have all finished, the papers are submitted to the professor, who proceeds to pronounce judgment upon their merits and demerits. A luncheon is afterwards served, and the young lady at whose house the class meets provides the prizes, one for the best and one for the worst translation, the latter reward being known as "the imbecile," and consisting usually in some ridiculous object. The person most to be congratulated in the course of this unique entertainment is certainly the professor, who receives ten dollars for each seance, derives from it some amusement if he happens to have a sense of humor, and has little or no work to perform.

☞ LOOK FOR THE RED FLAG. ☜

Fatal Dynamite Explosion.

OTTAWA, July 21.—At Streator this morning a car load of dynamite had just been received and was being placed in a magazine for blasting coal, when lightning struck it. The force of the explosion threw ten thousand people from their beds while one hundred houses were completely wrecked. The shock was felt thirteen miles distant. The total loss will exceed one hundred and fifty thousand dollars. Hundreds of men are thrown out of employment and many rendered homeless. Three deaths have occurred and forty-four persons are more or less injured.

The New York Club.

NEW YORK, July 21.—The New York Yacht Club has decided to extend the annual cruise so that its fleet may join in the regatta of the Eastern Yacht Club, at Marblehead, on August 13, or 15. Mr. E. D. Morgan, owner of the Mayflower, was this evening elected Rear Commodore, Vice Frank, of Lawrence, resigned.

The Fidelity Bank.

CINCINNATI, O., July, 21.—At a preliminary hearing of Miss Josie Holmes, confidential clerk of Harper, of the Fidelity bank today, she waived examination. The bond was fixed at ten thousand dollars which she failed to give and at six o'clock she was taken to the County Jail.

Mrs. Cleveland's Birthday.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 21.—Professor Elliott, Actuary of the Treasury, has estimated the population of the United States on the first of July at 59,863,000.

Mrs. Cleveland celebrated her birthday quietly at Oak View.

An Awful Tragedy.

WASHINGTON, Ind., July, 21— A terrible tragedy occurred near Petersburg 12 miles south of here last night. Peter Burkhart who was one of the wealthiest farmers of the country, was about seventy years of age and the father of a large family yet he was not too old to be jealous of the young wife whom he had married late in life. She was a very prepossessing woman but what she gave her aged husband any real cause for jealousy about does not appear. At any rate there was trouble between them last night he shot her through the heart and then killed himself. His little four year old son witnessed the awful deed and his screams brought in and aroused the neighbors.

Lawless Kentucky.

MARYSVILLE, Ky., July 21.—D. B. Logan and Sheriff Hogge, of Rowan County, were here to-day. Logan was the leader of the Law and Order people of Rowan, who killed Craig Tolliver, and three of his gang not long ago. Logan and Hogge were in consultation with Judge Cole all the morning. The next term of court in Rowan County will be held Aug. 2nd, and the authorities fear trouble. Judge Cole has been asked to see that troops are sent to Moorehead. Judge Cole said he would ask for a detachment of guards to protect the court from the Tollivers.

More Brutality.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Richard K. Fox, cabled to this city to-day, that he had completed arrangements for a fight for the so called world championship, between J. Smith and Jake Kilrain, for $5000 a side, the fight to take place in Spain, four months from date of signing articles. Each side will be allowed 50 friends. Articles will be signed next Tuesday, when $1000 forfeit from each side will be put up. Fox offered White, Smith's backer, $5000 to bring his man to America.

A Wretched Affair.

ODESSA, Mo., July 21.—Miss Minnie McHattan, leader of the village church choir and daughter of a leading local attorney, gave birth to a child and accused J. B. Henry, pastor of the Campbell church, of being the father. A mob formed to ride Henry out of town on a rail, but was repulsed. Henry has left town and a church investigation is to follow.

Another Ruffian Killed.

PITTSBURG, PA., July 21.—A coroner's jury to-night exonerated Policeman John Thompson for the murder of Jimmy Weedef the prize fighter. It was shown that the policeman shot only to save his own life.

Chicago's Boodlers.

CHICAGO, ILL., July 21.—After one month of effort a jury was to-day obtained to try the Cook County Commissioners, who have robbed the taxpayers of millions. It is expected that the trial of the boodlers will occupy six weeks.

Death of an American Princess.

GREEN CAMP, O., July 21.—Princess Conta, aged 19, a beautiful gypsy who has been ill for a long time, swallowed a dose of rat poison this morning, and died in a few hours.

Refuting Mis-Statements.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July, 20.—The Local finance committee of Grand Army Encampment today sent notices to the Posts throughout the country denying a statement that $25,000 of subscriptions to the entertainment fund have been withdrawn on account of the action of the G. A. R. in the matter of the Cleveland invitation. The Committee find only seven persons, who have refused to pay and their combined subscriptions amount to only $6,750.

"Turn the Rascals Out."

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 20.—Oscar J. Harvey, formerly Chief of the House Claims Division of the Treasury, who committed a series of systematic forgeries, pleaded guilty to-day and was sentenced to 12 years at hard labor in the Albany Penitentiary.

Gorman's Baltimore Victory.

BALTIMORE, July 20.—The vote passed to-day for legislative candidates was larger than ever before at a primary election. The promise made by the State Democratic Central Committee that there would be honest judges and a fair count were fully carried out, and this brought out people who have not voted before for years. The Raisin faction, which is really Senator Gorman's, carried 17 out of 20 wards by large majorities. The result will be that Baltimore will cast its vote in the state convention for the State Senator, E. E. Jackson, Gorman's choice, for Governor.

A Great Undertaking.

BUFFALO, July 20.—The Business Men's Association, of this city, has a movement well under way by which a prize of $100,000 will be offered for the best practical plan for utilizing the water of Niagara for manufacturing purposes.

Youthful Depravity.

PORTLAND, ME., July 20.—George E. Lawrence is a boy of 12 years, but he has managed in his short life at least to attempt the commission of many crimes. Last night his brother J. Lawrence, gave him a "good talking to." George seemed more ugly than usual and said in a threatening way "I'll do you for this." In the night George got up and quietly opened his knife, then John felt the hand of his brother passing slowly over his face and down to his throat. He jumped up and grabbed the hand of the young villian, just as the point of the knife touched his throat, and just in time to save his life. Judge Gough to-day sent him to the State Reform School during his minority.

The Banquet to Parnell.

LONDON, July 20.—Mr. Dellwyn, M. P., presided at the banquet tendered by the Liberals to Mr. Parnell at the National Liberal Club tonight. Among those present were Messrs. Dellon, Justen McCarty, Labouchere, Sexton and Wilfred Lawson. Mr. Dellwyn in his address of welcome said that the banquet was intended to most publicly declare the union of the liberals and the Parnellites. He then proposed the health of Mr. Parnell and all the Nationalist members. The toast was enthusiastically received. Mr. Parnell in replying spoke hopefully of Home Rule prospects as indicated by the results of the recent elections. He thanked the liberals for their co-operation and referred to the Tory proposals as justifying the action of the Irish party.

The President Makes a Speech.

FAYETTEVILLE, N. Y., July 19.—President Cleveland and party were warmly welcomed on their arrival here from Cazenovia this afternoon. It had not been the President's intention to make a speech but at one o'clock more than 1000 people present had not shaken the President's hand, and to soften their disappointment he made a short speech as follows:

My friends I see that it is impossible in the short space allotted to shake all by the hands and I am unwilling to leave you without giving some recognition to all, I am unchanged today as far as my feeling is concerned toward the people of Fayetteville and it is with extreme gratitude I am with you. I find myself in a place above all others dear to me at the present time. It was here that I enjoyed every pleasure, sport and pastime of my boyhood. And must recall to the minds of the citizens of Fayetteville some of the changes since forty years ago. Very many of the friends of that time are dead. I was reminded today of the number of deaths on the north side of your principal street between the bridge and the street on which I used to turn down to the old parsonage, and I was astonished." He then recalled the names of many who had gone over to the silent majority.

More Mormons Coming.

NEW YORK, July 19.—The Castle Garden officers have received information that a company of about 300 converts to Mormonism are making arrangements to sail from Liverpool to New York. It is expected that the Latter Day Saints will arrive at this port early in August. Some of them will settle in New Mexico but the majority will go to Utah. The Mormon Missionaries have been making renewed exertions to secure converts in Europe of late but they met with much less success than in former years.

Distress on the Labrador Coast.

OTTAWA, July 19.—Advices received by the government to-day from Newfoundland, report the people of the western shores of the island and on the Labrador coast, as in a most deplorable and destitute condition. All opposition to a confederacy with the Dominion which was put forth during the prosperity of the Colony, has been withdrawn, and now the plea comes to be admitted to the Udion, with which object in view Sir Alexander Campbell is now en route for St. John's.

Bar Harbor Refinement.

Miss Hattie Connor of Sullivan has a fortune in her whistle. She has never been trained in the art, and yet can whistle some of the most difficult music with a piano accompaniment. Nature has certainly given her a phenominal whistle, which if cultivated to its utmost capacity, would give her an enviable reputation. She is exceedingly modest in her manner and has a handsome, winning face. Last evening she entertained the guests at the Waukeag with some of her fine notes.—[Bar Harbor Tourist.

The Rector's Pew.

BY HENRY TOWNSEND WILSON.

Beside a well trimmed hedge-row,
Stands an old horse chestnut tree.
Beneath its spreading branches,
Dwells a maiden fair to see,
As fair as woodland violets,
Or fairer asphodel,
Her name in life shall sacred be
In song 'tis Gabrielle—

At church I oft times see her
In the Rector's high backed pew,
She'll not vouchsafe a glance to me
Altho' I humbly sue—
On bended knee for all mankind,
She prays, for Jesus' sake
But I alas must stand aloof,
Her blessing cannot take,
In "Jerusalem the Golden," as the anthem rose and fell
One seemed an angels notes from Heaven,
The voice of Gabrielle.

One day I donned a snowwhite beard
And with pilgrim's staff in hand
I journeyed to my loves abode
As the poorest in the land,
She smiled upon me sweetly,
And she gave me from her store
But still I lingered o'er the scene
I longed for something more
And I said forgive a poor old man
Untaught, bereft of pride—
Who has dared to journey to the door
Where Heaven and you reside—

Beneath my lonely roof tree
With aching heart I mourn
The ocean's never ceasing moan,
Sounds ghostlike and forlorn,
My Dog, true friend comes to me,
In his eyes his love confessed
He knoweth that his master
Is dying of unrest.
In sackcloth and in ashes—
To the end my beads I'll tell
Then O God, perchance in Heaven
I shall meet my Gabrielle.

Keep sweet your breath—if maid or wife,
Or old or young, or large or small,
If you have any home in life.—
If you have any friends at all.
Keep sweet your breath—and heed the warning,
Use SOZODONT each night and morning!

Like the Perfume Wafted

from beds of flowers is the breath that has been rendered agreeably odorous with SOZODONT, which communicates to the teeth a marble whiteness, and to the gums a roseate tint. Use it, and beautify your mouth.

HOW PAT WENT COURTING.

A Story Told as Samuel Lover Might Have Told It.

She's consinted at last! Fur two years I'd thocht a dale ov Nelly McCusker, only I had nothin' ov an Irish boy's bouldness to up and tell her that same. But yesterday sez I to mesilf—Pat Murky, now's yer toime, or niver. Nelly was in the pantry washin' dishes an' sumthin shouted: Ax her! She's too busy to look at yer, ony way. So I starts on wid—Troth, Nelly, it's a bad loife for a boy to be livin' alone.—Yis, sez she, wid nary a twinkle. Mike Ryan, that's jist bin sint to prison, is in a bad way indade. Och, sez I, there's mony a boy that's lonely livin' rite wid his friends an' naybors. Sure an' I'm lonesome mesilf. How can I b'lave that, sez she, whin y've got a fiddul?—Fiddules, sez I, are cheerin', but I've got me two eyes set on somet, on somethin' cheerinер. She forgot to ax me what that somethin' was, so I trotted off by another road, sayin': Faith, Nelly, I'm goin' back to Ould Ireland. Indade, sez she flirtin' the dishrag.—An' it's a pity ye iver cum over. Yis, sez I, Jane said that same in her last lether.

An' who's Jane? axt Nelly, gettin' red loike the crabs on the table besoide her. She thinks a power o' me, sez I, onheedin'. Shure an' that's quare,—Is she young—us me? Yis. An' better lookin? Paple moight think so.—An' is she waitin' fur ye? Yis. She'll be changin' names sure, I reckon? Yis. What's her name now? Jane—Murdy! cried I, wid delight. Thin, she's your sister? sez Nelly, cross ez her mistress. Well, it ain't much matter seein' ez how I've got a boy wothin' sun me over in Ballycoran. Wat's his names? axt I, turnin' hot an, cold all at wunst. Barney Flynn, sez she. About me size? Yis. An' duz he luv ye? Next to the Vargin. Is he comin' over sure? No. Why not, bedad? Och, Pat, he's married alriddy! The spalpeen! says I. Don't give him hard names, sez she, Barney Flynn a's me stip-brudher!

Then she laff o' hern an' I went up close. Nelly, sez I. Wat, Pat? Cud ye luv a boy loike me? Throth an' I wouldn't thry. Why not, darlint?—Faith, I wuz niver axt to. Thin I'll ax ye now. Don't do it, sez she. I'm that full o' work I couldn't reply for a month, and the dishes flew'd ivry wich way ez she said it, But I sat down on the stip. I kin wait, sez I. The misthress will come an' foind yez here.—I'll be plazed to mate her. I'll tell her ye're a robber. Begorra, that's just what I am, for I'm after Nelly McCusker's heart! Ye'll be arrested. I hav bin alriddy and yer blu' eyes did it! sez I. Cum, Nelly, lock me up in yer warm heart foriver. Och, it's boulted an' I've lost the key. Thin I'll cloimb in at the winder. She hung her curly hed fur a minit, and when she lookt up I axt her to be my woife. I'll guv ye foive seconds, sez I. Ef ye will, jist fotch me the big pewter spoon ye've bin wipin'; ef you won't, thin put it back in the drawer? She peeped at me over the top av it. D'ye mane what ye say, Pat? Yis, darlint, sez I. Thin here's the spoon.

Carter Harrison's Tender Spot.

Ex-Mayor Carter Harrison of Chicago shows by a recent act that the memory of the felicity of his home, when his wife was living, is strong and persuasive. He has just sent a check for $3000 to the German Old People's Home because his wife had expressed a purpose to make the institution a donation. The fund is to be named after Mrs. Harrison. One forgets the politician as the man writes: "While Margarette lived she made my home happy and bright. If her fund shall make the Altenheim a happy and bright home to some of its unfortunate occupants the loss I have suffered by her death will be deprived of a small part of its sting."

Senator John I. Mitchell, of Pennsylvania, says of the temperance movement: "If in any town, city or State it can be prohibited, let it be banished; if from any day sacred to religion or to patriotism it can be expurgated, let that be done; if it can be driven from its many places of traffic into few, and in them be better regulated and brought more under the light of public scrutiny, its vicious influence will be less and its final extermination will be easier because its effect upon vested rights will be less general. I shall be content," he adds, "to support that party which I think has done, can and will do the most to avert the real dangers which threaten us from this source, so long as it shall be obedient to that progressive spirit which has thus far enabled it to deserve popular support."

A Quiet Rebuke.—An old minister one Sunday, at the close of the sermon, gave notice to the congregation that in the course of the week he expected to go on a mission to the heathen. One of the deacons, in great agitation, exclaimed, "Why, my dear sir, you have never told us a word of this before; what shall we do?" "Oh, brother," said the parson, "I don't expect to go out of town."

Startling Information.—Under the heading "Shipping News" a contemporary has the following:—"The launch of the Clythia passed off successfully. The christening was performed with the customary rites by Miss Isabella Campbell. Her weight is one thousand two hundred tons, and she is made to carry six heavy guns below deck."

Mr. Cyrus W. Field expects to see electricity used as a motive power on the elevated roads.

A Kentuckian has named his horse 'Gossip,' because there is no stopping him when he gets going.

Regular Military Tools.—"Files" of soldiers.

Personal.

Dr. Fordyce Barker, of this city, has received from Bowdoin College the honorary degree of LL. D.

Madame Christine Nilson owns two large buildings on Otis street, Boston, which the assessors rate at $123,000.

Miss Clara Louise Kellogg is on the way to Carlsbad, and will be absent from America ten weeks. On her return she will resume singing in concert.

Mr. Robert Hoe, President of the Grolier Club, is the only American member of the Societe des Amis des Livres, of which the celebrated bibliophile, the Duc d'Aumale, is president.

Mrs. Alexander Mitchell, of Milwaukee, has decided not to contest her husband's will, under which she receives $200,000 in cash, and an annual sum of $50,000.

The Newberry Library, the gift to Chicago of the late Walter S. Newberry, of that city, will have a working fund of about $2,000,000. The erection of the building will probably begin next fall.

Count Kuroda, special adviser to the Japanese cabinet, who lately returned from a European tour, is engaged in the compilation of a work which will contain the observations made during his visit.

Professor Coppee, of Lehigh University, owns a water-color representing Oliver Cromwell at the coffin of Charles I. It was painted by Whistler while a cadet at West Point, and enjoys the respect of connoisseurs.

Carrier-pigeons are earning new laurels. Mr. E. S. Dorman, of Plainfield, New Jersey, recently welcomed home a carrier-pigeon which had come from Wilmington, North Carolina, in about twenty-four hours—a distance of 500 miles.

Dr. Joseph F. Geisler, official chemist to the New York Mercantile Exchange, has been experimenting with enamelled hat bands. Some of them contain a compound of lead which makes the head ache because the poison from them has been absorbed into the system of the wearer.

Justice Stephen J. Field, of the United States Supreme Court, was visited by a large number of old California friends during his recent stay of a few days in San Francisco. He held an almost continual levee in his room s at the Palace Hotel, and seemed to grow young in recalling the experiences of early days in California.

A reviewer of Schumann's letters quotes the following from a German critic: "No tone poet has been more enthusiastic in the praise of women than Robert Schumann. He was a second Frauenlob. This was acknowledged by the maidens of Bonn, who at his interment filled the cemetery and crowned his tomb with immmerable garlands."

The Empress of China has presented 600 stanzas of poetry of her own composition to the Hanlin College, while Prince Chu'un has written a collection of verse in which he has described the novel objects that he saw in his tour through China last year. It is said these two Oriental authors are somewhat jealous of each other's poetical ability.

Mr. Robert Bonner's interest in horses arose primarily from the benefits he received from horseback riding, in accordance with a prescription from a physician, who thus cured him from the effects of overwork. After three months of the exercise Mr. Bonner was able to do as much work in three hours as previously in ten or twelve hours.

Elam Brown, one of the early pioneers to California, who crossed the plains in an emigrant train in 1846, celebrated this month his ninetieth birthday at his home in Contra Costa County, California. The patriarch owns the Acalenes Ranch, which he bought from its Spanish proprietor, and on this anniversary no less than seventy-five of his family and immediate kindred sat down to table.

The largest olive-grower in this country is Mr. Ellwood Cooper, of Santa Barbara, California, who has sixty acres in bearing olive-trees. He sets out many acres in olives every year, but as it takes ten years for the trees to come into full bearing, it will be well into the next century before he has the thousand acres in bearing which is the limit of his ambition. He is also the largest manufacturer of olive oil on this side of the Atlantic.

The failure to put women into the Board of Education in Brooklyn is believed so be only temporary. Mayor Whitney at present thinks that public opinion is not behind him in the matter; but next autumn an organization for the purpose will be effected. In New York the women members of the Board of Education are an acknowledge success.

President Timothy Dwight, of Yale College, laments that the temptation to get money and to spend it, to view it as the means of all good and the end of all desire, is continually becoming stronger and seemingly more irresistable. He assures his students that if they are to be a force in the world for the higher things as against the lower, they must show that material prosperity or wealth is not essential to happiness.

New York Fashions.

Black Net and Tulle Dresses.—Black Brussels nets, tulle, and the finely dotted point d'esprit nets are made up for dressy toilettes for those in light mourning. The dull jet beads in rows and in fringe are sometimes seen on such dresses, but their prettiest trimmings are rows of gauze ribbon set underneath, giving the effect of striped fabrics; these ribbon stripes are across the sides of pleated skirts, or else narrow ribbons are used in a cluster to form a border above a hem. Chantilly net strewn with large spots like balls is also fashionable for very dressy black worn as complimentary mourning.

Light Mourning.—Many families now wear black without using crape trimmings. Mixtures of black and white remain most in favor for light mourning, notwithstanding the efforts to popularize gray and lavender; these light colors are too generally used this season by those who are not in mourning to be worn distinctively as mourning.

For The Neck.—Folds are more used than frills for neck wear in mourning. Two bias folds of English crape are basted inside the neck and sleeves of the first dresses; in many families this entire black is worn only at the funeral, a white lisse fold being added immediately afterward, or else this white fold takes the place of one of the black folds. Bolting-cloth, a durable silk muslin, is used in four folds alternately of white and black, a white fold always coming at the top next the skin. Widows wear all black or all white, the latter appearing in a wide collar and cuffs of white organdie with inch-wide hems. For light mourning black gros grain ribbon with white loops on the edges is folded to show both edges above the dress collar, and a fold of white lisse or of the more serviceable bolting-cloth is placed above it. There are also many square-meshed canvas folds, and others of bars, or stripes of corded fabrics, for wearing with plain dresses. Plain white linen collars, and those of percale with specks, lines, or wider stripes of black, are worn in straight high bands, or with the turned-over points in front in English fashion. Ruches of black tulle or of Brussels net are worn by young ladies who find them becoming, and are considered suitable for either full mourning or for the light mourning worn for distant relatives. Sometimes dull jet beads are put on folds and frills for the neck, but these have a heavy, warm look for summer dresses.

Bonnets and Veils.—Double English crape covered by a long veil is the first bonnet for deep mourning. White caps inside are only worn by widows. Veils of English crape or of nun's veiling are pinned on the bonnet to hang to the waist behind and almost to the foot in front. A hem three-eighths of a yard deep is in front, while that behind is narrower. Drawn crape bonnets are much used when the veil is left off; in these the shirrings may run round and round the crown, or else extend from the crown forward to the edge of the brim, and have flutings or shirred tucks or folds on the edge. Dull jet beads may border the bonnet, or be used in wings or leaves amid folds or puffs of crape. Brussels net and tulle pokes are worn by young ladies and by those in complimentary mourning. English straws and fancy black braids are worn for travelling and as plain bonnets, trimmed with crape or with dull repped ribbon. Round hats have Russian net trimmings amid loops of crape, and their brims are faced with crape or with tucked tulle drawn up in puffs. Sailor hats of black straw, trimmed with a black ribbon band or with black and white striped ribbon, are worn by young girls in mourning.

The Coral Necklace of a Queen.

Queen Margherita possesses a coral necklace which she always wears day and night. If the Queen wears a dress with which the ornament does not harmonize she keeps her necklace on, although hidden. The following touching story is told in connection with the necklace: Five years ago the Italian Crown Prince Victor Emmanuel was out walking in Venice with his tutor. He noticed some corals in a jeweler's window which pleased him very much. "I shall buy those for my mother," he said, and so saying entered the shop to ask the price of the corals. On hearing the sum, he said: "I have not so much money at present, but I will make you an offer. I will buy five corals to-day and you keep the rest for me, and as often as I have saved some money I will send it to you and you will send to me as many of the remaining corals as the money will buy." The bargain was concluded, but two years elapsed before the Prince had the pleasure of presenting his mother with the necklace. The Queen, on hearing the circumstances of this purchase, was very much affected, and said to her son: "This is now the most precious of all my jewels, and I will never cease to wear it, for it will always remind me of your tender love for me." —[Pall Mall Gazette.

What is the difference between a fisherman and a lazy schoolboy?—One bates his hook, and the other hates his book.

Fashion Notes.

The frock of white pique is again in favor for little girls.

Dotted fabrics are as fashionable as plaided and barred stuff.

There is a tendency in Paris toward hats with lower crowns.

The Norfolk is the favorite jacket for little girls as well as for little boys.

Pongee parasols with fancy handles are selling at Ridleys' for 75 cents.

Polka dotted foulard cambrics are selling at Denning's at five cents the yard.

Boas of white Chantilly and Valenciennes lace are worn by French women this summer.

Mitts of silk take precedence of gloves on all except very dressy occasions at the moment.

There are some lovely white and black shirred mull sun bonnets at Denning's that are sold for $1.

Kilt skirts and blouse waists are the preferred form for little girls, flannel, serge, and other wool frocks.

Night gowns, embroidered, ruffled, trimmed with lace and insertion, are selling for 39 cents and 67 cents.

Cammeyer's "wigwam shoes" are the most admirable creation in the way of a house slipper that has been produced for years.

Long woolen bathing stockings to match suits in color are provided with cork soles or slippers of rubber securely attached to the bottom of the foot.

The prettiest summer bonnets and hats are of straw trimmed with white mull, white laces, white flowers, white ostrich tips, white aigrettes, and white birds.

A fiery fancy in the way of red frocks is of scarlet batiste dotted with black and trimmed with black velvet bows and cascades of black lace, the hat, parasol, and shoes to match.

Costumes of white cloth with embroideries of white silk and silver, and costumes of silver gray cloth with steel embroidery and gray pearls, come among the latest importations from Paris.

The prettiest summer parasols are of cream-colored satin, with a white Spanish lace cover overhanging the canopy, the handle of the parasol being of white wood decorated with scorched designs.

Blue flannel is the preferred fabric for bathing suits, and the short-sleeved blouse waist attached to the trousers with a skirt that buttons on round the waist, is the popular form of the bath suit.

There are no new fashions in bathing suits, for the manifest reason that bathing is no longer fashionable. But people bathe for all that, and the surf bath is as popular to-day as ever if not so fashionable."

The latest fancy in an opera cloak or sorti de bal, is a long loose garment of white brocade, embroidered in silver and gold set on a yoke embroidered with pearls, which covers the shoulders like a deep collar, while from under it in front fall two long panels of lace, giving the effect of a stole.

The latest fashion in hair dressing is coiffure à la vrai Greque, not high on the head, but drawn up in a close coil, rolled under something like a French twist on the back of the head, brushed off the temples and forehead, with only a few light curly tresses falling from under a reviere of jewels or a Greek fillet that just touches the top of the forehead and descibes a straight line to the back of the head. The whole effect is very close, and no additional hair is required.

Hints to Housekeepers.

To fumigate a house, burn in it sulphur or tar; then whitewash and paint.

Set a dish of water in oven with cake when baking and it will seldom scorch.

Moths can be kept out of garments by wrapping them in soiled colored calico.

Lemon juice and sugar, mixed very thick, is useful to relieve coughs and sore throats. It must be very acid as well as sweet.

It is said that snuffing powdered borax up the nostrils will cure a catarrhal cold.

A good way to take cod liver oil, to make it palatable, is by putting it into tomato catsup.

A rich gloss can be put on glass by rubbing it quickly with newspaper; dry or wet whiting will give a brilliant polish to glass.

To apply a mustard plaster so as not to blister the skin, mix the mustard with the white of an egg instead of water. The plaster will draw thoroughly without blistering the most delicate skin.

Butter and eggs for cake should always be beaten to a cream.

To boil a pudding in a bag, dip bag, (which should be made of thick cotton or linen) in hot water, and rub the inside with flour before putting in the pudding; when done dip the bag in cold water and the pudding will turn out easily. Always put a plate on the bottom of the kettle to keep the pudding from burning.

You can take out spots from wash goods by rubbing them with the yolks of eggs before washing.

General Sheridan has never depended upon influential friends for help. When he was appointed a lieutenant he resolved to be a first-class one. He was good to his men, gave them plenty to eat, and made each feel that he was his friend. "The result was; I got to be a brigadier-general."

AYER'S Hair Vigor has given me perfect satisfaction. I was nearly bald for six years, during which time I used many hair preparations, but without success. Indeed, what little hair I had, was growing thinner, until I tried Ayer's Hair Vigor. I used two bottles of the Vigor, and my head is now well covered with a new growth of hair. —Judson B. Chapel, Peabody, Mass.

HAIR that has become weak, gray, and faded, may have new life and color restored to it by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. "My hair was thin, faded, and dry, and fell out in large quantities. Ayer's Hair Vigor stopped the falling, and restored my hair to its original color. As a dressing for the hair, this preparation has no equal.—Mary N. Hammond, Stillwater, Minn.

VIGOR, youth, and beauty, in the appearance of the hair, may be preserved for an indefinite period by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. "A disease of the scalp caused my hair to become harsh and dry, and to fall out freely. Nothing I tried seemed to do any good until I commenced using Ayer's Hair Vigor. Three bottles of this preparation restored my hair to a healthy condition, and it is now soft and pliant. My scalp is cured, and it is also free from dandruff.—Mrs. E. R. Foss, Milwaukee, Wis.

Medicine.

Sore Eyes

The eyes are always in sympathy with the body, and afford an excellent index of its condition. When the eyes become weak, and the lids inflamed and sore, it is an evidence that the system has become disordered by Scrofula, for which Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best known remedy.

Scrofula, which produced a painful inflammation in my eyes, caused me much suffering for a number of years. By the advice of a physician I commenced taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. After using this medicine a short time I was completely

Cured

My eyes are now in a splendid condition, and I am as well and strong as ever.—Mrs. William Gage, Concord, N. H.

For a number of years I was troubled with a humor in my eyes, and was unable to obtain any relief until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine has effected a complete cure, and I believe it to be the best of blood purifiers.—C. E. Upton, Nashua, N. H.

From childhood, and until within a few months, I have been afflicted with Weak and Sore Eyes. I have used for these complaints, with beneficial results, Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and consider it a great blood purifier.—Mrs. C. Phillips, Glover, Vt.

I suffered for a year with inflammation in my left eye. Three ulcers formed on the ball, depriving me of sight, and causing great pain. After trying many other remedies, to no purpose, I was finally induced to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, three bottles of this medicine, have been entirely cured. My sight has been restored, and there is no sign of inflammation, sore, or ulcer in my eye.—Kendal T. Bowen, Sugar Tree Ridge, Ohio.

By Taking

My daughter, ten years old, was afflicted with Scrofulous Sore Eyes. During the last two years she never saw light of any kind. Physicians of the highest standing exerted their skill, but with no permanent success. On the recommendation of a friend I purchased a bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which my daughter commenced taking. Before she had used the third bottle her sight was restored, and she can now look steadily at a brilliant light without pain. Her cure is complete.—W. E. Sutherland, Evangelist, Shelby City, Ky.

In Trouble.

Mourn for Kalakaua,
King of Honolulu,
Husband of the tawny
Lady Kapiolani.
Visiting Victoria
At the present moment.

Weep for Kalakaua,
As before requested.
For he is reported
In a heap of trouble:
Wicked men have bribed him
In the opium business.
Gave him twenty thousand
Dollars in a basket;
Gave him thirty thousand
In a check to order
Of a slant-eyed Pagan.
Which they called him Aki;
Gave him forty thousand
Sewed within a roast pig;
And when Kalakaua
Carved the savory suckling
Out the ducats tumbled!

Mourn for Kalakaua,
As above suggested,
For with Kapiolani
On the broad Atlantic
He has been and gone and
Got himself in trouble.
Mourn for Kalakaua,
Victim to temptation,
In a heap of trouble.

W. W. CORCORAN.

The Venerable Philanthropist Very Feeble—He will Probably Never Walk Again—A Sketch of His Life.

A few days ago the venerable George Bancroft visited his near neighbor, the venerable philanthropist, W. W. Corcoran, who had been stricken with paralysis, and expressed the greatest concern for his old friend. Now George Bancroft, who always leaves Washington with the month of roses, is at his Newport home "on the Cliffs." Mr. Corcoran, removed to the pure air of the Alleghanies at Deer Park, has partially recovered, but never will regain his strength. "I fear," said an old family friend who has just come down from the mountain retreat, "that he will never walk again, and I told him so. I said that at his time of life he could not expect to regain his accustomed vigor after such a shock, and he bore the news cheerfully."

He may live a year or two longer, but it is not to be expected that he can long survive, for he long since passed the three score and ten mile post, and has been for some months in feeble health. If he shall live until December 27 he will then have finished his eighty-ninth year. He was born at Georgetown, D. C., on December 27, 1798, one year before George Washington died, and he is one of the few men in the world who has personally known every President of the United States, save one. A survey of the events of Mr. Corcoran's busy life involves a long look into the past. In the year that he was born Wilberforce's motion for the suppression of the slave trade was lost in the British Parliament, and slavery was abolished in Massachusetts; Bonaparte was at the height of his fame, and Byron died; the United States had issued reprisals against France, the controversy as to which is still going on in the Court of Claims, and George Washington was Commander-in-Chief of the United States Army. Mr. Corcoran, in submitting some suggestion as to the Presidential count a few years ago, stated in his memorial that he had seen "all the Presidents of the United States except the first, and that he had held confidential relations with many of them." George Bancroft, his near neighbor, visited him the other day, and George Bancroft was Secretary of the Navy under that administration which especially favored the young firm of Corcoran & Riggs, which gave them to negotiate the loan of the United States to carry on the Mexican war, by the placing of which that firm laid the foundation for the great fortune of both of its members.

Early Days.

Mr. Corcoran's father came to this country from Ireland in 1783 and settled in Georgetown. At that time the District of Columbia was little more than a wilderness, and George Washington was still a country gentleman at Mount Vernon. It was the year in which the independence of the United States was signed at Versailles, and about the time that Gen. Washington resigned his command of the army. The elder Corcoran kept a little thread store on the only business street of Georgetown, and lived in a small farm house, where William Wilson Corcoran was born, on one of the streets which runs up from the Potomac, not far from the Oak Hill Cemetery which Mr. Corcoran many years ago gave to the city. This is one of the most beautiful of the cemeteries of America, to the management of which the venerable philanthropist has given more attention than to most any other business enterprise in the declining years of his life. Young Corcoran had few opportunities for education, but he improved those that were provided to the utmost. He was placed at an early age in a dry goods store in Georgetown, where he might learn business habits, and, at the same time, help to take some of the burdens off his struggling father. The lad proved very apt at business, and had not been long in this store before he attracted the attention of General Mason, then the President of the Georgetown Bank, who was one of the most promising bank officers of the young republic. Gen. Mason was the father of the Mason who was one of the rebel Commissioners who was taken from the Trent at the outbreak of the war, and George Eustis, the husband of Louise Corcoran, from whom, and from his wife, the Louise Home is named, was the private secretary of Slidell, the other Commissioner. He, also, was taken from the Trent by Admiral Wilkes, together with the Commissioners. The quaint old bank building in which Gen. Mason had his bank still stands upon the high bluff which overlooks the Potomac, not far from the northern abutment of the Aqueduct Bridge. At this bank young Corcoran made rapid progress and became proficient in the knowledge of finance. He served an apprenticeship there as clerk for three years, when he received a clerkship in the branch bank of the United States, which was located in the building now occupied by the Surgeon General of the United States army, immediately opposite the Treasury Building. Young Corcoran, who was even then noted for the suavity and affability of manner for which, as an old man, he has been so much admired, attracted the attention of the then President of the United States, who kept his account at that bank, and when the United States Bank was abolished and the bank of Gen. Mason, in Georgetown, went into liquidation, the President appointed young Corcoran the agent of the Government to look after the real estate belonging to the Bank of Mason, which the United States, as a creditor, was compelled to take for a debt. He secured much prestige as a young man on account of this recognition by the Administration, which was an advantage to him when he soon afterwards started in business for himself as a broker in a little shop not far from the spot where the great banking house of J. Cook & Co., in 1873, closed its doors. A few years later young Corcoran was destined to lay the foundations of a very large fortune, by reason of the fact that he was selected the agent of the Government to negotiate a loan of forty millions, by means of which the United States was enabled to prosecute the war against Mexico for the extension of slave territory and for conquest.

When young Corcoran was a clerk in Georgetown there was another young lad a clerk there in a dry goods store, a Yankee boy of 11 years, George Peabody of Salem, Mass. He was a friend and playmate of Corcoran, and their acquaintance lasted through life. George Peabody became so useful to his employers that he was sent to Baltimore, where the principal store was located, and at the age of 10 was placed in an important position. When about 40 he was sent to England on a financial mission for the State of Maryland, and he remained there and established the great banking house where he made his fortune. He was a banker in London when young Corcoran went there to place the loan of the United States to prosecute the Mexican war, after a confidential agent sent by the Secretary of the Treasury had returned and pronounced the attempt to place the loan hopeless. George Peabody, by means of his acquaintance with the Baring brothers, to whom he introduced Corcoran, was able to render very valuable assistance which, undoubtedly, was the means by which Mr. Corcoran secured the first part of his large fortune. In Mr. Corcoran's library now there are many autograph letters from George Peabody referring to the history of that loan. In one of them, in which, at a later period, he congratulated Corcoran for having contributed a large sum of money to the aid of some Hungarian refugees, Peabody said that he, too, should make large donations to charity when he became rich. The inference from the letter is that at that time Corcoran had outstripped Peabody in the race for wealth.

Daniel Webster was a great friend of Corcoran when he was Secretary of State, and he was helpful to him in his efforts to secure the patronage of the Government in the negotiations of loans. It is reported, in fact, that one of the autographs which Mr. Corcoran has long had in his possession is a note of Daniel Webster for a very considerable sum of money. Autographs of that kind of Webster's were quite common here at one time.

The residence of Mr. Corcoran here is one of the finest in the city. It was built by Thomas Swann, the father of the Thomas Swann who was Governor of Maryland. For a long time he was in Congress, and distinguished himself in the last years of his life by marrying the Widow Thomson, of New Jersey, a woman of great attractions, who still survives. This house was sold by Thomas Swann to Daniel Webster. The purchase money was raised by a purse of the friends of Webster in New York and Boston, to which, it is understood, Mr. Corcoran was a large contributor. It was in this house that Webster lived when the Ashburton treaty was negotiated. Later he preferred to make his permanent home at Marshfield, and then W. W. Corcoran purchased the house, where he has since resided. The house is built upon what was once an entire square, and the grounds are surrounded by a high wall.—[Boston Journal.

General Sherman told the cadets at West Point that advice is the cheapest thing going, and that there was something of the humorous in seeing sixty-four young men about to enter life thinking that they knew all things. "But there are many lessons taught here of which the world hears nothing. 'Erect! Silence!'—these are the lessons that are never taught in our universities."

Chantry, the Sculptor.—One day, when Chantry, the sculptor, had reached the height of his fame, and was paying a visit to Mr. Rodgers, at his residence overlooking the Green park, he said, laying his hand on a pedestal ornamented with a Grecian scroll, "Sir, do you remember a journeyman carver waiting, some years ago, in this room, to receive instructions respecting this identical stand and the sideboard at the other end of the room? I was that workman, then a journeyman, receiving thirty shillings a week."

The New York Star's fund for the Grant monument now amounts to $3,328. Only $121,072 more is needed to complete the desired amount.

Off-Hand Avowals.

A young man at a church bazar was button-holed by a lady; she would not let him go until he bought something. He looked at her stall which contained fancy work of various kinds. "Why," he said, "I see nothing here that would be of the least use to me, a bachelor, except yourself. The rest would be dear to me at any price." "I will be cheap enough," she said, coaxingly. "If you could be dear enough, perhaps —" "Oh, come! you fare just the person I want," taking him by the arm. She sold him one article after another, keeping up an agreeable conversation the while, and before all was done he had purchased everything on the stall. —Then, settling up, there was something said about discount. "I cannot return any money," she said blushing, "but if you think me dear enough there's mamma; she may give you my hand." The bargain was accordingly concluded.

An eminent doctor, who had saved the life of a lady, a personal friend, was asked his charge. He said he generally allowed his patient friends to remunerate him as they thought befitting. "But but don't you often get disappointed on these terms?" she inquired. "I may say never." "As you are so easily pleased, here," and she playfully gave him her empty hand, while in the other was concealed a check for a handsome sum. "How easily I could have taken you in!" she added, producing the check. "But you have only succeeded in drawing me out," he said, declining to relinquish her hand; "don't insult me with a check; I am most generously rewarded." Perhaps she understood the doctor's difficulty and wished to help him out of it; at any rate the giving him her hand led him to offer his heart.

A lady with a fine figure having taken a fancy to a valuable ring which she saw ticketed in a show window went inside to examine it. "It is exceedingly lovely; I wish it were mine," she said, on satisfying herself. "What smaller figure could tempt you?" "No other figure than the figure before me," he said, giving her an admiring look at the same time; "it is exceedingly lovely. I wish—I could tempt you with the ring." "I think I'll take it," she said, laying down the money amid blushes. Of course he accepted the money; but, getting her address, he made such good use of the hint that the next ring that she got was given by him in church.

A lady in a railway train kept looking out of the window, with her head forward, until she remembered that the gentleman opposite might possibly object. "Do I cut off the view?" she asked. "Merely of all I do not wish to see?" he replied, gallantly. The ice having been thus broken, they entered into conversation, found they were to get out at the same station, and knew each other's friends. The rest was plain sailing into what somebody calls 'the matrimonial haven."

"Are you married yet, Kitty?" said a sailor, on meeting an old acquaintance after returning from a long voyage,—"No, that somebody has never come." "Ah, then, I have brought him, after a deal of bother," he said, throwing his arms around her, and the matter was then settled.

MIDDLETOWN.

Because of the heavy rain on Sunday evening there was no meeting in the church at the Four Corners. The invitation to all who desire the enforcement of prohibition is renewed for next Sunday evening. The interest manifested last week promises a large gathering if the weather is good.

COURT OF PROBATE.—The Court of Probate of this town was in session at the Town Hall, on Monday afternoon, when all the members were present. The following named petitions were considered and acted on:

Petition of Kate Bailey to be appointed guardian of her minor children, granted upon her giving bond in the sum of $20,000, with Abraham Coggeshall as surety. Noul Coggeshall, of Middletown, and Charles Sherman and William L. Sisson, of Portsmouth, were appointed appraisers of the estates of said minors.

On the petition of Ruth Sherman, widow of Abel Sherman, the will of said Abel was proved and admitted to record, and letters testamentary on his estate were directed to issue to his said widow, as the sole executrix of said will, upon her giving bond in the sum of $500, to pay the debts and legacies of her testator, with William Peckham as surety. The first account of Felix A. Peckham, administrator on the estate of Sarah Ann Whitman was examined, allowed and passed for record and an order made for said administrator to distribute the balance in his hands among the next of kin of his intestate.

IN TOWN COUNCIL. The matter of improving Second and First Beach avenues which has been in abeyance for some time was taken up. Mr. Julien T. Davis being present as the representative of the abutters and persons specially interested. After a somewhat protracted discussion of the matter, Mr. Davis was constituted a committee to consult a civil engineer and procure a revised plan and specifications for making the desired improvement including a profile thereof and to present the same to the Council as soon as practicable.

John Allan of Newport was granted an order on the dog fund for Middletown's proportional part of the amount of damage sustained by him.

Orders on the Town Treasurer to the amount of $48.26 were granted. George A. Brown was elected a Coroner for the term of three years. Considerable attention had previously been given to the selection of a Truant Officer and the framing of a truant ordinance, this subject occupied the time of Monday's session to a large extent. The General Assembly having late in the January session, in May, amended the law so as to make the enactment of such an ordinance and the appointment of such an officer a condition precedent to the payment of 50 per cent. of the school money paid by the state, the commissioner of Public Schools has for some weeks been urging upon the Town Councils of the various towns in the State, compliance with this condition. As an abstract fact, however, Middletown has no more occasion for a truant law than for a prohibitory liquor law. The absence of truants as well as places for the sale of liquor render it needless to enact laws for the punishment of the first or the prohibition of the second. However an ordinance to regulate truants, if only imaginary ones, must of neccessity be enacted, and was enacted on Monday and ordered to be printed and posted. It is substantially the same ordinance recommended by the State Board of Education and adopted by several towns in the State. After repeated attempts to secure the appointment of a special Constable and Truant Officer, Mr. William F. Peckham was finally appointed for the remainder of the present school year at an annual salary of $40.00.

Newporters Abroad.

The following interesting paragraph is taken from Galignani's Messenger, of Paris, July 5th:

A most pleasant and successful American "home party" was given by Mme. Vve. Leon Glatz last night, at her residence, 45 Rue de Clichy. The company present, to the number of about 60, consisted almost exclusively of American residents and visitors in Paris. They included Mr. and Mrs. F. Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. J. Oliver Mr., Mrs. and Miss Fayerweather, Gilpin and Miss Minnie Lindsey, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Battleboro, of Vermont; Mr. and Mrs. Van Husan, of Rochester; Mr., Mrs. and Miss W. W. Wilcox, of Middletown, Conn.; the Rev. Wm. Roberts and Miss J. Roberts, of Brooklyn; Mrs. Edwards, wife of Senator Edwards, of New Jersey; Mr. Sargent, of Boston; Mrs. John B. Red and Miss Red, Mrs. H. Ramson, and Miss Maud Hammer, of Chicago; Miss F. V. Newton and Miss E. H. Swinburne of Newport. The toilettes were very elegant. The party began with a "Progressive Euchre party and a grab-bag." A Fourth of July punch added considerably to the fun of the evening. This was served in the beautiful salon, which was gaily and tastefully decorated with American flags. The party ended at a late hour with a ball, the last dance being the famous "Sir Roger de Coverley." The health of the hostess was enthusiastically drunk by the company, who separated after having passed a most pleasant evening.
